National Breeders Hold Convention In Pennsylvania

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — In the opening session of the National Association of Animal Breeders 48th annual convention, H. Louis Moore, professor of ag economics at Penn State, gave his views on the economy and how it relates to agriculture.

"I'm bullish on the economy," Moore said. "Interest rates are positive even though they will likely creep up. Inflation is good news; food prices and supplies are good because farmers are producing more than we need to eat; unemployment is not too bad, and business and consumer confidence is good.

On the negative side, Moore said the cost of entitlements (social security and other things government can do nothing about) are high and growing. Social security cost $319 billion in 1994 and was 20.5 percent of federal spending.

In addition, the world is in a recession; Congress is having second thoughts about health care; world unrest has caused hot spots around the world, and domestic and foreign policies are weak.

But Moore said the farm outlook is "better than some have per-

Tobacco Growers Worry About Tax Proposals, Prices For Crop

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANDISVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — A lot of tobacco growers "are holding their breath at this point" while rumors persist about taxes on products going up dramatically. If so, growers and markets could be hit hard, according to Larry Weaver, president of the Pennsylvania Tobacco Growers Association.

About 125 growers and other industry representatives were on hand at a meeting Monday night at the Penn State Research Station near Landisville to discuss the future of the industry and hear about the proposed tax increases.

Included were members of the association, which supports 1,100 growers, mostly in Lancaster County, according to Weaver.

Prices for tobacco at auction and in private sales have been declining steadily through the years, and this steady decline has worried many tobacco growers, who raise the county's number one cash crop, estimated at about 9,800 acres with a value of more than $21 million.

The Clinton Health Care proposals are particularly frightening, since the proposals will make those who use tobacco products pay for national health care. And this means substantial increases in the cost of cigarettes and other tobacco products.

At the meeting, U.S. Rep. Robert S. Walker (R-16th) spoke in defense of the tobacco industry about the tax proposals. Walker said that the revenue from tobacco

The tobacco harvest in Lancaster County has progressed rapidly this week as farmers rush to get the maturing crop into the sheds before wet weather diseases reduce quality and production. In the photo, on the Ruben Stoltzfus farm north of Intercourse Tuesday afternoon, Larry and Chad Stoltzfus handle the large, heavy lath of tobacco while Clint Stewart drives tractor. The Stoltzfus family farm 11 acres and are about half done with their harvest.

National Grain Market

St. Joseph, Mo.
Wednesday, August 24, 1994

DAILY NATIONAL GRAIN SUMMARY EXCELLENT EXPORT DEMAND FOR WHEAT AND ADDITIONAL BIDS ON THE BOOKS DROVE WHEAT PRICES HIGHER. SPILLOVER STRENGTH FROM SOYBEAN PITS SUPPORTED CORN PRICES ALONG WITH DECREASING OLD CROP SUPPLIES. BEAN PRICES CONTINUED TO CLIMB DUE TO IMPROVED EXPORT SALES, GOOD CRUSH DEMAND AND THE POSSIBILITY FOR RAIN OVER THE WEEKEND IN MIDWEST AREAS. WHEAT 2 TO 7 CENTS HIGHER. CORN 2 TO 4 CENTS HIGHER. SORGHUM 4 TO 6 CENTS HIGHER. SOYBEANS 5 TO 10 CENTS HIGHER. EXPORT SALES SEEMED TO FLOOD IN TODAY AND SOME OF THE RECENT REJECTED OFFERS WERE REBID. SPRING WHEAT AND WHITE WHEAT WERE BIG SELLERS WITH JAPAN, THE PHILIPPINES AND YEMEN THE BIG BUYERS. CORN PRICES TURNED HIGHER FOLLOWING SOYBEAN STRENGTH. OLD CROP CORN IS DWINDLING AND HARVEST IS STILL SEVERAL WEEKS AWAY. WORRIES CONTINUE TO EXIST OVER PROSPECTS FOR A BUMPER CORN CROP. RAINFALL IS IN THE FORECAST FOR THE MIDWEST AND CORN BELT AREAS TOWARD THE END OF THE WEEK AND INTO THE WEEKEND. CORN AND SOYBEAN PRICES TURNED POSITIVE IN ANTICIPATION OF MUCH NEED MOISTURE. SOYBEANS ENJOYED GOOD EXPORT DEMAND.

AUG. 29-SEPT 4, 1994

NEWSPAPER CARRIER DAY, SEPT. 4.

"READ ALL ABOUT IT!"

Benjamin Day felt there was a publishing niche to be filled in New York, and he thought he was the one to fill it. On September 3, 1833, he distributed the first issue of his New York Sun, a four-page daily, selling for one penny. Day gave New Yorkers what he thought they wanted: sensational accounts of crime and horror, human-interest stories, and no politics. One of the first things Day did was to run this ad in his second issue "To the Unemployed — A number of steady men can find employment by vending this paper A liberal discount is allowed to those who buy to sell again." Ten-year-old Barney Flaherty responded and was hired Benjamin Day did indeed fill a niche, giving America its first successful penny press and its first newsboy

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ For best flavor gather herbs on a dry day when the herbs first blossom.

EARTHWISE

When it comes to helping out around the house vinegar is one of the best nontoxic solutions available Use it to clean, deodorize, and cut through grimy films Try soaking slimy sponges in a strong vinegar and water solution for 24 hours Then rinse well in cold water and dry in the sun In the kitchen use vinegar to wipe down countertops It will get rid of the "icky sticky" residues, eliminate odors, and discourage ants

CHORE-TIME ...nobody knows more about feeding

NORTHEAST POULTRY SHOW Lancaster, PA September 28-29, 1994

Both Models C2 (above) and H2 (left) start chicks when lowered to floor, finish birds when raised up.

The Right Choice in broiler feeders

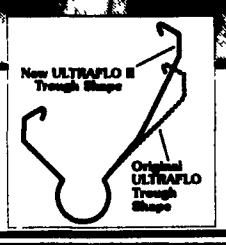
Feed broilers and pullets your way! As the world leader in poultry feeding systems, Chore-Time offers you the best choices in feeders. You will love what our newest feeders —the Model C2™ and Model H2™—do for you.

Features include (1) labor-saving Patented Feed Windows that open to let chicks eat from day one—without additional feed on paper or "lids", (2) feed-saving features like easy feed adjustment settings, and (3) cost-saving all-plastic designs with Chore-Time Warranty.

Pick a Chore-Time feeding system—including our rugged feed bins and Genuine Chore-Time FLEX-AUGER® Feed Delivery System, plus ventilation—and you know you've made the Right Choice—because it's from Chore-Time, the leader!

CHORE-TIME EQUIPMENT
Milford, Indiana

New Shape
The difference is the shape of the feeder's trough (at right). ULTRAFLO II's higher trough lip reduces feed waste by keeping it in the trough and not on the floor or in the pit.



The Right Choice in cage feeders

Chore-Time's popular ULTRAFLO® Cage Feeding System is now even more outstanding! We've developed and tested the second generation of ULTRAFLO feeders and named it the ULTRAFLO® II.

ULTRAFLO II offers you even greater reliability, durability, and outstanding feed-saving performance—up to 1 gram of feed per bird per day—over the original ULTRAFLO. And even the original ULTRAFLO was beating our competitors in feed savings!

So, join the cage feeding leader. Contact us today. Find out how Chore-Time and ULTRAFLO II can help you be a leader, too!

OPINION

Meat Industry Responds To Consumer Needs

The U.S. meat industry is at a significant crossroads, where meat safety and quality coalesce as top priorities for the industry. The industry's recognition in the late '80s and the '90s of the growing evidence linking good health to smart nutrition brought leaner, trimmer meats to the meat counters. New packaging and the introduction of ready-to-eat meat dinners and products provided consumers with the convenience and quality they demanded. At the same time, concerns about emerging pathogenic bacteria, particularly a virulent strain of Escherichia coli (or E. coli 0157:H7), and an outdated inspection program directed industry's attention to further improve the safety of its products.

According to the executive summary of the National Meat Board's Blue Ribbon Task Force the crossroads facing the meat industry mirrors that of the government, as it moves to bring better science and safety control measures to the federal meat inspection program. The entire industry has committed to studying and developing measures that will reduce the introduction and growth of harmful pathogens that may be found in meat. New programs, techniques, and products designed to improve meat safety have been studied by companies, government agencies, and university researchers. Much data has been collected that provides profiles of meat and meat cuts and offers a glimpse of microbiological trends in the industry.

While the overall goal is to always provide the safest, cleanest, and most wholesome meat possible to consumers, the industry recognizes that meat surfaces — like poultry, seafood, and fresh produce — contain naturally occurring bacteria, some of which can be harmful if not properly controlled. By taking stringent measures to prevent and control pathogenic bacteria from the farm through the meat plant and to the retail establishment and the consumer's home, the industry can make available the safest product possible.

Significant changes in consumer food buying and purchasing trends have also resulted in new food safety challenges. Consumers rely heavily on convenient, ready-to-eat meat products that require little preparation. They spend more of their food dollars at restaurants than ever before. They expect a safe, nearly risk-free product. At the same time, fewer consumers know proper handling and cooking requirements for meats. Most bacteria are destroyed by proper cooking. While educating consumers about their role in preventing food-borne illness will continue to be a priority, the meat industry understands that it is its responsibility to market safe products.

New technologies such as irradiation pasteurization, carcass antibacterial rinses, and sprays, and rapid microbial tests offer exciting possibilities for identifying, controlling, and possibly eliminating bacteria that could cause food-born illness. The Hazard Analysis and Critical Control Point (HAACP) system of food production is a common-sense approach to monitoring and verifying that the food production system is working and producing the safest food possible. These and other new techniques and processes will result in improved public health protection.

Now Is The Time

To Account For Seeding Variation

According to a University of Wisconsin study, the same seeder setting on a planter gave a large variation in the amount of seed used per acre in an alfalfa seeding trail.

The amount of seed used per acre in the study varied from a low of 13.8 pounds per acre to a high of 20.8 pounds per acre.

Several factors contributed to the difference in the study. First was the size of the seed. A second factor was whether the seed was coated or not. A third factor was the number of seeds per pound of seed.

It is a general rule of thumb that a pound of alfalfa seed contains 220,000 seeds. In the Wisconsin study that number varied from a low of 196,000 to a high of 224,000 seeds per pound of seed.

Dr. Marvin Hall, Penn State Agronomist, considers 75 to 90 alfalfa seeds per square foot to be an ideal seeding. In the Wisconsin study, rates varied from a low of 70 seeds to a high of 105 seeds per square.

Calibrate your seeders now to insure you receive the stand and productivity you want.

To Calibrate Seeders

Before seeding any forages or small grain crops this fall, calibration of the seeder may save you money, according to Robert Anderson, extension agronomy agent.

Knowing the ideal seeding rate for a crop is only half the battle. Knowing how much seed is being applied by the seeder is another important step in getting the optimum number of plants growing per acre.

A study in Wisconsin found that most farmers knew how much seed was suggested per acre, but few knew exactly how much was being applied until the job was done. Then they compared the amount of seed used and the acres planted.

Seed calibration is fairly easy and may help to insure a proper seeding rate. Each time a variety of seed is changed, Dr. Marvin Hall, Penn State Agronomist, suggests recalibration of the seeder using the following method.

Spread a tarp on the ground and run the seeder over it. Then select several sites on the tarp and count the number of seeds in a one square foot area. If you count between 75 and 90 seeds in each square foot area, you are seeding at an ideal rate for alfalfa.

To Analyze Production Data

When was the last time you sat down and analyze production data from your farm?

Farmers receive a lot of production information from settlement sheets or with check payments. You need to ask yourself, where do I stand or rank with my fellow producers? Are you in the top 10 percent? The bottom third or in the middle?

If you are not in the top 10 percent, you need to start analyzing why and take steps to become a top 10 percent producer.

Agriculture is still a very highly competitive industry. As a result, you have many farmers constantly looking for better, more efficient and profitable ways to produce. This means change is always with us. As a result, farmers need to be constantly studying, participating in educational meetings and incorporating and managing change in their operation.

So the next time you receive your milk check or contract settlement, calculate your various production efficiencies and compare to an industry or company database. Find out were you rank. If your company or cooperative does not have a company database on its farmers, you may want to encourage them to develop one.

With today's computer technology it would be easy to generate a database that will help identify your farm's strengths and weaknesses.

Feather Prof's Footnote: "Losers let it happen, Winners make it happen."

Farm Forum

Editor,

What happened to the first farm forum? I haven't heard anymore about it. The last I read they were going to make professionals out of the PA farmers. That's good, but may I make a suggestion, set up a committee of honest, hard working farmers and have them go from farm to farm all across the state with petitions asking the farmers opinion and actually report it back to the forum. Ask all the important questions so as not to confuse the issues and label each

WHAT'S ON THE MENU?
August 28, 1994

Background Scripture:
Deuteronomy 28
Devotional Reading:
Deuteronomy 29: 10-18a

There are some valuable lessons in Deuteronomy 28, but be forewarned: it is a pre-Christian document and its picture of God is substantially different from the one presented in the New Testament.

I shouldn't bother to make that observation were it not for the tendency of some Christians to lift from the Old Testament teachings and ideas that are incompatible with Christian understanding. This is not to denigrate Deuteronomy, but to put it in perspective — as Jesus did.

The basic idea of this chapter is that obeying God's commandments brings blessings and disobeying brings curses. "And all these blessings shall come upon you and overtake you if you obey the voice of the Lord your God" (28:2). "But if you will not obey the voice of the Lord your God or be careful to do all His commandments and His statutes which I command you this day, then all these curses shall come upon you and overtake you" (28:15).

IN PERSPECTIVE

Generally, this is true: obeying God usually brings blessings while disobeying him usually brings troubles. This is the motivation to which Moses appealed: it will pay to do good and it will cost you to disobey God. But we have to understand that in this chapter Moses is speaking poetically instead of as a systematic thinker. He is overstating his case and that is all right as long as you know that and keep it in mind.

If you try to make a legalistic principle out of it, however, it will not work, because all of us have been around long enough to know that doing right sometimes brings sorrow — the crucifixion of Jesus — and doing wrong is sometimes rewarded, at least in the short run.

Note that all of the blessings and curses are primarily material in nature: "Blessed shall be the fruit of your body, and the fruit of your ground, and the fruit of your beasts, the increase of your cattle, and the young of your flock" (28:4). "Cursed . . . shall you be in the field. Cursed shall you be in your basket and your kneading trough. Cursed shall be the fruit of your body, and the fruit of your ground . . ." (28:18). There is nothing said about spiritual blessings and curses. That was a perspective still to come.

A GREATER LONG RUN

Why? Because they had no official belief in life after death and there was no hereafter. And because there was no hereafter the only way a person could be rewarded or punished was in the here and now with material well-being. With the advent of a belief in a life after death there was provided a greater "long run" in which to receive either blessings or curses and in a spiritual rather than material realm.

Another point of contrast is in the depiction of God and His reaction to the consequences of human sin: "And as the Lord took delight in doing you good and multiplying you, so the Lord will take delight in bringing ruin upon you and destroying you" (28:63). The God of the New Testament (as well as the God depicted by other writers of the Old Testament: Hosea, Isaiah, Jeremiah, etc.) is not one who would "delight" in destroying his disobedient children.

Nevertheless, this chapter is relevant for us today in that it teaches us that our well-being is dependent upon the choices we make — and to realize that those choices have consequences, quite apart from the issue of God's forgiveness. For example: if we take someone's life and then seek God's forgiveness, it will not bring that person back to life. Forgiveness usually does not change consequences in the short-run, only the long-run.

Robert Louis Stevenson once said, "Everybody soon or late sits down to a banquet of consequences." Just remember, what's on the menu is what you put there.

The new White 445 Chisel Plow makes complying with residue guidelines and requirements easy. Options like rippled coulters and chisel points set at 15" spacing leave lots of residue. Concave coulters and twisted shovels set at 12" spacing leave less residue. And these are just a few of the combinations available.

Our deep-till shank option rips hardpan by tilling 4" to 6" inches deeper than chisel shanks. This reduces compaction problems. And our leveling bar option provides a smoother surface for your next pass.

With nine models, there's a model with the options to match your residue management plans.

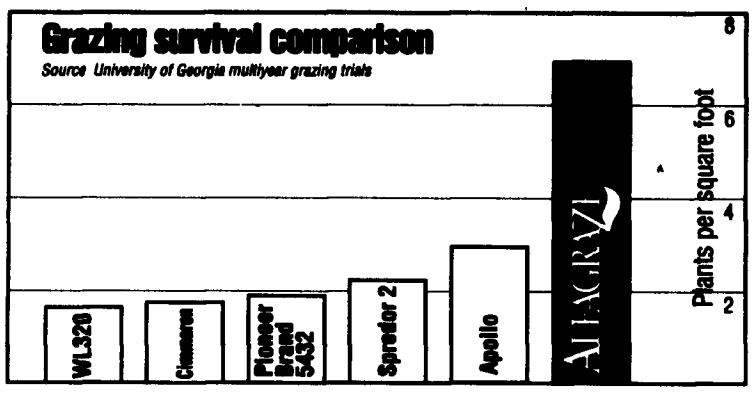
Discover AMERICA'S ALFAGRAZE Alfalfa

Hay it and graze it!



■ 12 years of development and testing by Dr. Joe Bouton at the University of Georgia prove Alfagraze survives grazing better than any alfalfa variety. And because Alfagraze features upright growth, you have the choice to cut it for hay or graze it.

■ Alfagraze lowers feed costs...
"While grazing our 120-cow dairy herd on Alfagraze, we reduced our daily feed costs from $3 a cow to $1.50. Over the next two years we plan to seed another 50 acres of Alfagraze."
— Dane Mercer, Dairyman, Sweetwater, TN

■ Alfagraze yields like conventional hay varieties.

■ Alfagraze has exceptional winterhardiness.

■ Alfagraze is very leafy with fine stems.

Lebanon Holstein Holds Field Day

MYERSTOWN (Lebanon Co.) — The Lebanon County Holstein Club held its annual field day last Friday at Ramona Holsteins Farm, owned by the John Kline family, in Myerstown.

About 330 people attended the evening outing with family entertainment, cattle judging, guest speaker Horace Backus, a pork barbecue and fellowship.

The Klines have a 70-cow registered Holstein herd and farm aobut 250 acres.

Three classes were offered for judging: a class of 3-year-olds, 4-year-olds, and a class of cows producing 30,000 pounds of milk.

In the youth division 13 and under, first two places were captured by Jesse Martin, of Ephrata, and Wesley Martin.

In the 14-19 division, Darin Nolt was first followed by Lowanda Shuey and Melinda Bomgardner.

The top three in the ladies division were Michelle Morrissey, Pattie Hurtgun, and Stephanie Wagner.

In the men's division, the top two placings were Chris Anderson and Elwood Ohlinger.

Jim Yonker, of Red Fever Farms, in Fleetwood, served as judge.

With all that's riding on your choice, you'll want a wheat variety that will produce for you in the field. And none surpass Hoffman 89.

Superior Test Weights. In three-year trials conducted by Penn State and the University of Maryland, Hoffman 89 registered the top test weight across all locations, in some cases approaching 62 lb/Bu. In Lancaster County trials, its 59.8 lb/Bu performance produced test weight savings of $7.76.

Yield. Superior test weight isn't the only advantage offered by Hoffman 89. In Centre County, it delivered 83 Bu/A—12% above the average. So you'd save $27 per acre using Hoffman 89.

Averaging the results of both trials, you'd earn $26.38 more per acre with Hoffman 89.

Dorset Is Supreme Champion Out Of 300 Entries At E-Town Fair

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — A non-Lancaster Countian swept the coveted overall champion breed and the supreme champion sheep awards at the Elizabethtown Fair on Wednesday.

Twelve-year-old Ann Leed from Myerstown, Lebanon County, showed a Dorset ewe lamb that judge Dyrk Wise said was outstanding in all areas.

But Ann Leed admitted that she does not like the Dorset champion very much.

"She's annoying. As soon as I set her up, she moves," said Ann who said that the Dorset's champion title might influence her to like her a bit better.

The daughter of Bob and Nancy Leed raises 25 sheep. The champion was purchased at the National Dorset Show because, Ann said, she needed size in her flock for lambing.

Of the 205 entries, Ryan Donough gave the most competition for the supreme title with his champion market lamb.

"I knew she was good," Ryan said of the heavyweight champion ewe Ginger, which was homebred. The son of Ed and LaRue Donough, helps on the family's farm where they raise 20 ewes plus offspring. The family puts the sheep through hurdles and leads them around for exercise.

Ryan took the reserve champion market lamb title last year with Ginger's full sister.

The title for Champion Sale Lamb overall went to Brandon Zeigler, who unfortunately could not do the showing because he broke his leg playing soccer last week. Lisa Reiff showed Brandon's lamb. The heavyweight Suffolk cross was purchased through the Reiffs who consistently have showed champion market lambs throughout the county for several years. After winning the 4-H County Roundup title, Lisa is taking a break in county fair competition until Farm Show, she said.

Twelve-year-old Brandon is the son of Dean and Carole Zeigler of Lititz. His brother Corby, 9, also showed sheep.

Reserve champion sale lamb was shown by Radell Peters of Middletown. The 11-year-old son of Raymond and Rebecca said that this was his first major win but he had that feeling #90, as he calls her, would do it.

Showmanship competition was divided into four categories. In the 16 and over division, Kyle Harnish won; in the 13-15-year-old division, Jessica Stoltzfus won. In the 10-12-year-old division, Jessica Schmidt took top honors, and the nine and under competition was won by Holly Hoover.

Senior Showman Kyle Harnish is a 17-year-old senior at Penn Manor High School. The son of Larry and Paula Harnish of Washington Boro has five Suffolk market lambs. This was Harnish's first showmanship title.

Thirteen-year-old Jessica Stoltzfus is no novice in showing. The daughter of Frank and Irene Stoltzfus of Elizabethtown, Jessica has 20 Dorsets and also took the reserve champion Dorset title that day.

Twelve-year-old Jessica Schmidt showed Mattea, a homebred sheep, for her showmanship win. Jessica, the daughter of Laurie and Peter Schmidt of Drumore, credits Mattea with enabling her to win.

Nine-year-old Holly Hoover won her first showmanship title in her second year of showing. The daughter of J. Martin and Lois Hoover of Schoeneck raises about 30 Hampshires and crosses with her siblings, Jenny, 13; Renee, 11; and Joshua, 8. A fourth grader at Ephrata Mennonite School, Holly said that she goes to about five county fair competitions.

In addition to Ann Leed being named champion and Jessica Stoltzfus, reserve, in Dorset breeds, the following were named winners in breeding competition.

Cheviot championship and reserve went to Keith Bollinger of Ephrata. Keith, and his twin brothers Jeff and Jerry, raise about 30 sheep on their Ephrata farm. Keith is a sophormore at Ephrata High School. His twin brothers graduated last year. The brothers are the sons of Ray and Sharon Bollinger.

Suffolk and champion and reserve honors went to Jerry Bollinger of Ephrata. Zeus gained attention at the fair for his large size. Originally from Kansas, the champion Suffolk was purchased in Virgina. The judge said that ordinarily when Suffolks get that large they don't have any bone to stand on, but Zeus was outstanding in that he had volume and correctness.

Showmanship champions, from left, are Jessica Stoltzfus in the 13-15-year-old division; Kyle Harnish, 16-and-over; Jessica Schmidt, 10-12, and Holly Hoover, 9-and-under.

Ten-year-old Ryan Donough holds his homebred ewe Ginger, who took the champion market lamb title.

Hampshire championship and reserve titles went to siblings Regina and Wendall Landis. Regina, 14, chose Mystic to show from the 50 bred ewes on her parents', Abe's and Dottie's Manheim farm.

Shropshire championship was won by Tracy Bollinger and reserve by Jack Tracy. Tracy, a senior at Manheim Central, brought her young flock to the competition. She raises 20 market and breeding Shropshires on her parents' Gene and Carol Bollinger's Manheim farm.

Southdown champion was Stephanie Kauffman and reserve Stephen Stoltzfus. Stephania is only 5 years old, but the feisty kindergartner doesn't let her small size interfere with showing and knowing all about sheep. She raises sheep on her grandparents' George and Lorraine Lewis' farm in Landisville. The champion Southdown Isabel was homebred.

"Her mother was all black," Stephanie said of the all-white lamb.

Stephanie's mother Ellen Lewis was a former sheep showman.

Tunis champion honors went to Erin Grosh and Montadale championships to John Schmidt for his homebred Montadale Michele.

Tobacco Growers Worry About Tax Proposals

crops helps to preserve farming in the area.

Weaver told Lancaster Farming that a similar proposal in Canada, which raised prices dramatically, made a lot of people simply stop smoking. This caused a lot of people to go out of business, he said.

"This issue is a lot more complicated than most people think," said Weaver. He said that those who propose the taxes should look at the revenues that convenience stores pull in because of cigarette and other tobacco sales — upward of 25 percent. Business for these stores would be disrupted significantly if people stopped smoking, such as they did in Canada, because of severe taxes.

Weaver said a meeting of the growers will be scheduled in February next year, with more details in the coming months.

According to John Yocum, manager of the research station, this year's tobacco crop "is probably one of the better crops in overall growth and uniformity," despite some problems with Etch virus and blue mold. Some good dry weather will lend to good curing air for the crop.

Farmers are cautiously cutting back on the amount of tobacco grown over the years because of these worries, according to Weaver. He used to grow about 12 acres of tobacco and is now down to eight acres. The last three years, the association president is growing only Maryland 609 type.

For now, prices of the southern markets are down from last year. Does this predict the price at the auction in Paradise starting late this year?

"Is it indicative of what's going on?" said Weaver. "I don't know."

Blue Mold Sighted

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Tobacco blue mold disease was identified in a field of Maryland type tobacco near Paradise on August 12. We have been expecting blue mold infection since Kentucky and Virginia were reporting infection at least two weeks ago, and the local weather conditions were good for infection.

There are no labeled products that would be effective at the present growth stage of our tobacco. Ridomil is only labeled for application prior to transplanting and at last cultivation (layby). Our best recommendation at this time is harvest sooner than normal if the tobacco has been topped, has decent growth, and shows blue mold infection.

If the tobacco is not topped, top even if you have to "bud" the tobacco, and then use a maleic hydrazide type of sucker control. Many times after the tobacco is topped and sprayed, the blue mold does not move above the bottom leaves.

Watch and be prepared to harvest sooner if you see the blue mold moving to the upper leaves. Fields most susceptible to blue mold are those that have poor air movement and those that stay wet (close to woods, bordered by corn, low, and fog susceptible).

A Gilt Named Dan Takes Trophy At E-Town

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — Amy Bollinger didn't care if it was a gilt. She wanted to name her 256-pound Hampshire cross "Dan."

"Boy, do we have a hog here," said Henry Holloway, show judge, to the 48 exhibitors and a few hundred family and friends watching the Elizabethtown Fair Swine Show on Tuesday night.

Holloway picked Amy's heavyweight champion gilt, the last class of the division, as supreme market hog champion.

Holloway, a Yorkshire breeder from Darlington, Md., said the hog exhibited "pure muscle . . . with extremely broad shoulders" over the other hogs during tough competition.

Amy's hog bested the reserve champion hog, a 250-pound Hampshire/Duroc cross exhibited by Gerald Boyd that won Class 2 of the heavyweight division and reserve heavyweight champion at the fair.

Amy, 15, daughter of Eugene and Carol Bollinger, Manheim, is a freshman at Manheim Central. The hog was obtained from the Bidner herd in Mohammed, Ill.

Amy, who won the county 4-H hog show championship, said she will be showing at the Manheim and Ephrata fairs in addition to the state Farm Show. She has been exhibiting in 4-H for six years and this is her first championship of any fair.

Gerald, 15, son of Kerry and Deb Boyd, Ephrata, exhibited his owner-bred hog, a ¾ Hampshire cross, also from the heavyweight division.

In the showmanship division, Tracy Bollinger won the 17-and-over championship, Jamie Brown won championship of the 15-16 year olds, Blaine Brown was champion of 13-14 year olds, and Kevin Pfautz was champion in the 12-and-under division.

In all, there were a total of 117 hogs and 48 exhibitors. Following is a list of show placings.

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — Amy Bollinger's 256-pound porker took the supreme champion of all champion livestock at the Elizabethtown Fair on Thursday night.

An estatic Amy clutched the hefty trophy and said it was a dream come true.

It was the first supreme champion win for the Bollinger family who raise both pigs and sheep on their Manheim farm.

Danielle, as Amy's calls the Hampshire Cross, was purchased from Lyle Bitler of Illinois.

Five judges deliberated among the champion steer, cow, sheep, goat, and hog to pronouce the swine as the most outstanding and correct for the breed.

"In the future, ag will be a smaller part of the total economy, but individual enterprises will become larger to allow for more purchasing power. Off-farm income will continue to increase, and pressure to be more efficient than neighbors will continue," Moore said.

In the cow and sales awards program, the following persons were recognized.

Orville Schwarze, Tri-State Breeders, has 150,000 first services; H. Eugene DeWitt, VA-NC Select Sires, Inc., has 1,500,000 unit sales, and Floyd Jones, COBA/Select Sires, received the 50 year service award.

District Responds To Heavy Stormwater, Erosion Complaints

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — A combination of very heavy rains — and soils already waterlogged from heavy snow and a wet spring — have caused soil erosion and silt deposits in many fields, backyards, and roads in the county.

As a result, the Lancaster County Conservation District has answered more than a 100 complaints from concerned homeowners and farm neighbors about silt and soil on properties and roads.

Although conservation plans have been designed and implemented to take care of 10-year type of storm events, the county has already experienced some 25- and 50-year storm events. Simply put, those kinds of sudden downpours, ranging from 2.5 inches to 3 inches of rain in an hour or less, happen, on average, every 25 to 50 years.

But one recent downpour near Kirkwood was a 100-year event, depositing more than three inches of rain in an hour.

"When you get three inches of rain in an hour, especially in fields that are newly tilled, you might get erosion, even with the best of terraces," said Don Robinson, manager of the district. Conservation practices work well, in place with good crop cover, for 10-year events.

"We have been inundated with calls from homeowners complaining about the water," said Robinson. "Half of the calls have been related to stormwater."

The district does not have jurisdiction over stormwater, said Robinson. Local municipalities deal with stormwater complaints.

Robinson said farmers and homeowners should realize that they must work together to solve problems of soil erosion and retention. But water will flow downhill, and homeowners need to be aware of this, especially if they live downslope from open farmland.

Under the Pennsylvania Clean Streams Law, landowners must comply with regard to any type of "earth-moving" activities. A farmer is exempt from any permits in plowing and tilling, but must comply in the event of "an accelerated erosion problem impacting the waters of the commonwealth" as defined by the streams law.

Lancaster is one of seven counties with a Level 3 enforcement authority. This means they can assess fines if farmers don't comply with the conservation plan.

The district office wants farmers to realize that they will endeavor in every way to work with farmers "to help implement a conservation plan to prevent storm erosion events from happening in the future," said Robinson.

Farmers should be aware, according to Robinson, that cost-sharing is available to implement a plan. Cost-share can take care of up to 75 percent of the total costs.

Robinson said he received a call earlier this week from a farmer complaining that even though another farmer, who works upslope, has a conservation plan, stormwater caused gullies in the neighbor's field. If the two farmers work together, both can solve the problem, and both could qualify for cost-sharing.

A few farmers, said Robinson, are becoming belligerent and just won't comply. After a time, the district may be forced to exercise their Level 3 authority and level fines — which can amount from a few hundred dollars to thousands of dollars, said Robinson.

Some of the problems, in fields that never had erosion problems before, are the result of an aggravated condition caused by heavy snows, followed by heavy rains in the spring, and then even more rain in the summer. On many farms, there are less hay fields and grain cover crops to help cover and retain the soil, and more corn following corn.

Some of the major problems with stormwater could have been avoided if farmers would consider putting in 10-15 foot wide buffer strips (along roads that are downslope of cultivated fields) that do a lot to help retain soil. This "common sense" strategy, said Robinson, "is part of the answer to solving these things."

Boar Tops $975 At Sale

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — An individual boar from a "record-setting" pen of boars returned the top price of the day during last week's Pennsylvania Performance-Tested Boar Sale at the Ag Arena during Penn State's Ag Progress Days.

The top-indexing individual boar sold to Kenneth Jones of Danville for $975. The lot #3 boar from the same pen sold for the third highest price of the evening sale, selected by James Mathis for $675. The second highest-selling boar was the Yorkshire from Keith Bard's pen, selected by Charles Hall for $775.

According to Glenn Eberly, director of the Meat Animal Evaluation Center, there was a releatively modest, soggy crowd in attendance (several inches of rain fell during the day and evening).

"The sale started off with a testament to the value of performance testing," said Eberly. "The top-indexing pen of boars that had been consigned by Charles and Mark Hall of Julian were sons of the top individual indexing boar they had purchased in last year's Performance-Tested Boar Sale."

The 12 Yorkshire boars sold averaged $519. The six Durocs averaged $421. The top-selling Duroc was the lot #12 boar, bred by James Parlett. The boar was purchased by Kenneth Jones of Danville for $550. The second highest selling Duroc was the lot #4 boar consigned by Smith's Hog Farm. This highest gaining and indexing Duroc sold to Rattlesnake Mt. Farm for $500.

The top-selling Hampshire boar was the highest indexing Hampshire boar bred by Chambers Hog Farm. The very lean boar sold to Michael Beach of New Enterprise for $525.

"In retrospect, the sale was very successful, especially in light of the depressed hog market," said Eberly.

For more information about the swine testing programs, contact Glenn Eberly, Director, Meat Animal Evaluation Center, 651 Fox Hollow Rd., State College, PA 16803, (814) 238-2527 or (814) 865-5857 to leave a message or send a fax.

Dairyman Of Year

ing Brook Farms with his wife Mary Ann. He has a Dairy Husbandry degree from Pennsylvania State University. Snider has worked on the farm since 1951, developing it into its current 1,200 acre and 400 head dairy farm. Son Bruce is now in partnership. Obie and Mary Ann Snider have three other children including Karyl Lynn Harper, Jo Nell, and Ross Ann Clark, along with 10 grandchildren.

Singing Brook Farms has received numerous honors. According to Tom Lyon, president of Cooperative Resources International, it "must rank among the nation's elite breeding establishments from the standpoint of productive capacity, national and international genetic influence, and industry service."

Four cows have been exhibited to grand championships at Pennsylvania state shows by Singing Brook Farms, three were owned and bred by exhibitor. The farm has received dozens of All-Pennsylvania awards, 13 Premier Breeder and four Premier Exhibitor awards. Its BAA is consistently 105-107. Six bulls currently in the top 400 of the Sire Summary carry the Singing Brook prefix, 40 bulls have been placed in major U.S. studs and 20 bulls are in Canadian and foreign studs. "Beyond his dairy and university leadership roles," says Lyon, "Obie Snider has also demonstrated a deep concern for the preservation of our land and water resources."

Snider is on the national boards for the Holstein Association Foundation and the American Farmland Trust. He is president of the Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show and the Christian Workers Fund, and serves on the Bedford County Planning Commission and Chamber of Commerce.

DAIRY WOMAN OF THE YEAR

Bonnie Jo Ayars of Mechanicsburg, Ohio, is World Dairy Expo's Dairy Woman of the Year. She is "the type of person who is self-motivated, organized and displays professionalism in whatever project or job she touches." That's according to Neil Jensen, executive secretary-treasurer of the American Guernsey Association, Reynoldsburg, Ohio.

"Bonnie is active on the farm milking and feeding, making management decisions, upkeep of records, along with raising three sons," Jensen continues. "Yet, she still has time to work toward the big picture whether it is promoting Guernseys or the entire dairy industry."

As owners and operators of Land of the Living Farm, Bonnie and her husband John have enjoyed great success. The couple's favorite saying is "Anything good that has ever happened to us has been directly related to cows." They run a diversified operation that includes three dairies, three cattle breeds, a cattle leasing business, and a thriving pizza business. Their sons, Eli, Austin, and Lucas play an active role in the family business.

Land of the Living Farm was the unofficial high national Guernsey herd for 1993 and holds a new world production record for Guernseys. Its cattle have been merchandised across the U.S. and three foreign countries. Twelve plus Guernsey bulls with the Land of the Living prefix have entered AI sampling. Cows from the herd have made at least 15 class leading records, while seven have produced more than 30,000 actual. The pinnacle of their showing achievement came in 1992, when Wincrest Vayette Grace was named Reserved Grand Champion at World Dairy Expo.

But the Dairy Woman of the Year was not raised on a dairy farm, according to Lee Majeski, a Maryland extension dairy specialist. Much of Bonnie's dairy "interest, enthusiasm and knowledge were gained after marrying her husband, John, and getting involved in the dairy industry." He says her "willingness to gain knowledge about the breed has helped her be a critical part of the farming operation including breeding and management decisions."

Bonnie holds a bachelor's degree in Home Economics from The Ohio State University. She's active in the Mechanicsburg United Methodist Church, Ohio Guernsey Breeder's Association, the local Parent Advisory Council, and many other state and national organizations. She is also recognized as a talented singer, writer, and strong supporter of youth.

INDUSTRY PERSON OF THE YEAR

Terry Howard "relates to the dairy farmer," says Dr. Lee Allenstein, Whitewater, Wis. Howard has been selected by World Dairy Expo as the 1994 Industry Person of the year. He is a dairy science professor at the University of Wisconsin--Madison, a member of the World Dairy Expo Board of Directors, an accredited judge for the Purebred Dairy Cattle Association, and an international dairy consultant.

Howard understands his dairy farm audience according to Allenstein. "He knows their language, their problems, and most of the time their solutions. The dairy industry, at the level of milk production from the dairy cow, is a better world due to the efforts of Terry Howard."

According to David Selner, 21st Century Genetics, Shawano, Wis., Howard's "efforts to help dairy producers milk the most profitable way possible are probably his greatest achievement," Selner says. "He helped pioneer the least cost ration balancing software programs that are now standard throughout the feed industry. He still, today, is improving those programs and challenging the feed industry to maintain high standards of scientific basis for ration formulated programs. Generations of dairymen have profited directly or indirectly from Terry's efforts."

Howard provided leadership to Wisconsin DHI for development of feeding guides and options, as well as nutrition and management training program for DHI supervisors. He has provided nutrition consultation to AI organizations, served as instructor at the Midwest Bankers Institute for 16 years, and served on the Wisconsin Governor's Drought Committee and Drought Assessment Task Force. A strong supporter of youth programs, Howard has been active in teaching anti cattle judging for 4-H and FFA members.

Terry and his wife Karen live in Madison, Wis. But the international dairy industry is also familiar to Howard. His "influence is being spread globally through his frequent trips to advise foreign farmers, governments and industries," Selner explains. According to Jim Crowley, Wayne Feeds, Madison, Wis., Howard "is respected for his abilities to implement practical dairy management concepts into developing dairy markets." He has been involved in dairy nutrition and management consulting in at least 17 countries.

The local community also benefits from Howard's involvement in the Mt. Olive Lutheran Church, St. Coletta School Board, Madison West Kiwanis, 4-H Junior Fair Board, and 4-H Leader Council.

INTERNATIONAL PERSON OF THE YEAR

A cattle breeder from the United Kingdom has been named the International Person of the Year by World Dairy Expo. John Moffit, of New Castle-Upon-Tyne, is "probably the best known and most influential man in British agriculture today," according to Robert Walton, chairman, American Breeders Service, DeForest, Wis. Walton says that Moffit is "equally at home in the milking parlor, in the show ring, leading a discussion on a highly technical committee, or chairing a national meeting on international agriculture policy."

Moffit was born in 1929 into a long-standing dairy farm family. He was educated at St. Bees School, Cumbria, and the University of Newcastle-Upon-Tyne, before returning to milk cows at his parents' new home in the late 1940's. At 33, Moffit was the youngest breeder in the Breed Society Council, and at 44, was the youngest president. The current farm business consists of four farms totaling 1,550 acres.

The Hunday herd, while smaller today because of milk quota restraints, once consisted of more than 1,000 head with three milking herds totaling 450 cows. Hunday herds have been extremely successful in the show ring, winning more than 15 championship reserves, 500 first prizes and 100 breeder group awards. Moffit has also won three championships at the Royal Agricultural Show. The farm business has exported cattle to numerous countries including Brazil, Columbia, Kenya, Japan, and Spain. Hunday was named Premier Breeder of the Year in 1980.

According to D.G. Spring, chief executive of the Holstein Friesian Society of Great Britain and Ireland, Moffit was a founding member of Cattle Breeding Services, the first private AI company in the U.K. It eventually became Premier Breeders. During that time, Moffit began the MOET program which used a mathematical model and efficient ET operation to establish a nucleus herd in the United Kingdom selected from the top one percent of the American cattle population. Moffit sold the operation in 1990 to the U.K.'s Milk Marketing Board.

Moffit has judged more than 600 shows including the Royal Shows in Australia and New Zealand. He is joint owner of Hunday Electronics Limited and chairman of the Animal Data Center, a national organization he established to gather various data processing organizations into one organized group.

Moffit is joined by his wife Madge, daughter Susan, and son Peter who currently runs the family farm business. He is an avid traveler and photographer, and sportsman. His love of agricultural history and old farm equipment has resulted in the Hunday Countryside Museum.

World Dairy Expo recognition winners are selected from nominations submitted each spring. Finalists are named by an anonymous selection committee. The four dairy leaders will be honored at a recognition reception and banquet in October which kicks off World Dairy Expo.

4-Year-Old Bests Southeast Holstein Dairy Show

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

KUTZTOWN (Berks Co.) — A 4-year-old, Dale-Pride Blacks Kasmira, exhibited by owner/breeder Dale E. Hostetter, was named supreme champion Holstein on Thursday afternoon during the Southeast Championship Holstein Show at the Kutztown Fairgrounds.

Show judge Curtis Day, Shippensburg, picked the 4-year-old over the open show junior 2-year-old, Bridon Supreme Kayla, exhibited by David and Barbara Miller.

Day said the 4-year-old "is a tremendously well-balanced individual, with correct feet and legs and an udder that is nicely attached to the body." He said the cow was "beautifully balanced" and she would "produce a lot of milk."

The champion cow, 8-30-90, S: To-Mar Blackstar-ET, D: Dale-Pride Bell Kristin, milks about 92 pounds a day, according to Brian Hostetter. The reserve, 5-8-92, S: Startmore Supreme, D: C Bridon Astro Jet Lydia, bred by Bryan Sayles, according to Jake Kramer, milks about 90 pounds a day.

Junior champion of the junior division went to Tara Kocher, Ore Farms Vintage Jasmine, a summer yearling. Reserve went to Jesse Bomgardner, for Loving-Meadows Krystan-TW, a winter yearling.

Grand champion junior division went to Jesse Bomgardner, for his 5-year-old, Loving Meadows Karealot. Reserve junior division champion went to a junior 3-year-old, Loving-Meadows Lover Girl, exhibited by Jay Bomgardner.

Premier breeder of the Southeast Dairy Show went to Pennwood Farms and family. Premier exhibitor went to ReuHel Farms and family.

Animal numbers were down by about half this year at the show because of bovine viral diarrhea (BVD). In all, there were a total of 88 animals and about 35 exhibitors.

Following is a list of show placings.

form so not to duplicate, then you will really see what is needed in our state.

What they may find out is maybe not what they want to hear. An honest answer? Are we really doomed? Or are the processors and handlers doomed? As a whitewash of many dairy farms in Eastern PA I find more than half of all the farms have off the farm jobs. They are mailmen, school bus drivers, DHIA technicians or they send their wives out to work as nurses, semen sales, breeders or just to work somewhere. Most of them work off the farm to meet their life style. Some have truck farms or orchards so the price of milk has got to be enough because they don't have time to try to change it. And more than that they know they can't change it.

It will not be long now. The baseball players went on strike because they did not want a "CAP" put on their salaries. Can you imagine a CAP on 1.4 million dollars. We had a CAP on our milk price for 20 years already. How much longer do you think the farmers are going to take it? With off-the-farm jobs and the hopeless feelings of never getting more money for a product that is so very valuable that our processors hope will never stop flowing.

For their sake a lot of people who milk the system "that's a good term". A new name for the most productive people in the world is not the answer. Doomed, maybe and far be it for me to point a finger at who is doomed. Like the best dairy cow in the stable it's going to dry up and it's going to be too late then. We as farmers have a blend of nourishment to feed even a dry cow, but we don't wait until she is so far gone to do any good. We have good replacements in the wings but do the processors? I think it's time to call their bluff, and make them remove our "CAP" on milk prices. We need the nourishment now, and a shot of BST won't help. We are too smart for that. Please keep me informed on the "first forum" maybe they can keep the "CAP" on the bottom of the bulk tanks across the nation.

With today's rising questions on health care packages and initiatives, a huge part of this country's driving force is being left with very little to say on this matter. Watching policymakers debate reform on national television, I began to wonder who was representing my voice — the voice of the small business farmer.

What about America's small businesses? How will we survive having to carry employer mandated health coverage? If you look at the facts, a majority of small business people nationwide are farmers. But when questions are asked about politic matters, how often do we get approached? Do people come knocking on farmhouses asking opinions? Do farmers get to cities to be included in census? Do people in Washington, D.C. even know what the farmers care about or need?

But it is not just farmers who are in danger. Any small business facing the Clinton mandate will suffer a devastating blow financially. If a farmer, for example, has even one full-time hired man, they will be responsible to pay a large portion of their employee's health care coverage. With rising costs in machinery repair, feed bills, veterinary costs and much more, will the farmers of America be able to survive another cost added on? How many farmers will be forced to reduce their help or even sell their business because they just can't handle another portion of their income being taken away from them? For the most part, farmers and other small businesses, financially, can't offer health coverage for their employees, because they are exactly that — a small business.

The health care issue has come up because of the rising costs of medical bills and health insurance. It has not come up because farmers are trying to supply this country with good-quality products. Therefore, why must we farmers suffer the consequences?

What we need is not mandates to pay for their workers, but help in getting access to affordable coverage. In conclusion, mandates will only hurt the heart of this country not help!

Ward's Hog Wins S.E. Pa. 4-H Market Hog Derby

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

NORTH CORNWALL (Lebanon Co.) — The overall grand champion of the 1994 4-H Southeastern Pennsylvania Hog Derby was also the champion for rate of gain, and the reserve heavyweight champion on foot.

Shown by Jessica Ward, daughter of Dan and Karen Ward, of Elizabethtown, her 254-pound homebred hog was out of a bred gilt she bought at the 1993 state Farm Show from Arnold Hog Farm, in Lebanon. She had purchased the bred gilt to start a 4-H breeding project.

Ward's champion first weighed in at 40 pounds, and averaged a rate of gain of 2.229 pounds per day. The carcass weighed 195 pounds and was 33.8 inches long.

The loin eye area (LEA), which is the large meat portion in a pork chop, was 6.65 inches and it had a back fat of .65 inches and was 54.381 percent lean. According to calculations, it was gaining .968 pounds of lean, per day on test.

The recently held, and unusual hog derby concluded on Saturday evening with the judging of carcasses. Held at Stoltzfus's Meats in Intercourse, Dr. Bill Henning, Penn State meats specialist, was carcass judge. He also explained many of the characteristics that the industry seeks in meats and how it relates to production.

Further, veterinarians were on hand and displayed real examples of health problems, the effects on the quality and value of products or byproducts, and methods for preventing such problems.

The derby was conceived several years ago by a group of extension agents working with 4-H groups in southeastern part of the state, the area that produces the majority of the state's hogs.

The agents wanted to modernize the 4-H program by providing an additional alternative to the historic on-foot-only competition, which touches only partially on providing an understanding of the goals of commercial hog production.

The result was the hog derby, based on competitions held by adult producers. The derby has created an educational hog-raising program for youth that emphasizes real-world production values, such as rate of gain, overall conformation and consumer product demands.

The youth weigh-in their market hogs early in the summer, take them back home and raise them, keeping health records, feeding records, etc.

The hogs are then brought back to a central place, reweighed and shown on foot; taken for slaughter and evaluated again. Further, the animals are also scanned with ultrasound for the loin eye area and the depth of backfat and those results are posted along with the actual findings to see how closely the measurement of the live animal compares to the measurements taken from the carcass.

The entire derby consists of three areas of competition — rate of gain, the on-foot evaluation, and the carcass evaluation. The combined total score determines the overall grand champion and is based on a final index that has been developed by pork producers nationally.

The ideal of such a competition as the derby is that the champion on foot would be the champion carcass, and, even more ideally, it would also lead in rate of gain.

Apparently that ideal is being neared.

The level of competition and the results of the 4-H breeding/hog raising projects after several years of involvement demonstrate that the derby program is working.

It is providing youth with a basis for a solid understanding of modern hog-raising techniques and objectives. And, with the results of the competitions falling close to the ideal, the veracity of the hog-raising information being taught by Penn State extensionists and 4-H leaders is demonstrated.

In fact, seven of the eight champions finished within the top 10 overall.

The only discrepency between on-foot judging and final index results was with the champion heavyweight and reserve grand champion on foot being placed 23rd overall, after final calculations. That animal was shown by Lisa Pfautz, daughter of Rick and Sue Pfautz, of Lititz.

The reserve champion overall was shown by Jared Forry, son of Gary and J. Lynne Forry, of Manheim, whose 278-pound entry also was reserve champion for rate of gain and averaged .932 pounds of lean gain per day. It's back fat was .9 inch, had an LEA of 6.96 inches, a carcass length of 34.1 inches, and carcass weight of 220 pounds. It had a rate of gain of 2.21 pounds per day.

Jared Seitz showed the third place animal which also was the reserve champion mediumweight on foot. His market hog started at 44 pounds and finished at 230 pounds. Seitz' hog averaged 1.917 pounds per day and with only .6

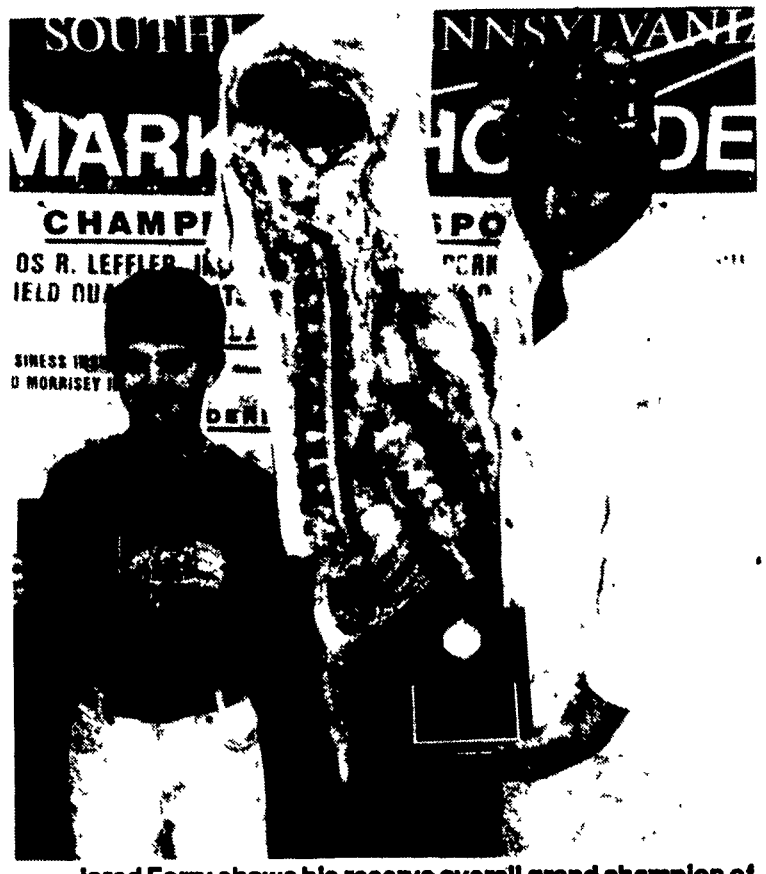
Jessica Ward stands behind her reserve champion heavyweight on-foot market hog.



Jared Forry shows his reserve overall grand champion of the S.E. Pa. 4-H Market Hog Derby, while Dr. Bill Henning, PSU meats specialist holds the plaque the hog won for reserve champion rate of gain. The hog didn't place among the champions in the on-foot competitions.

Brandon Forry shows brother Adam's champion market hog on foot of the show portion of the S.E. Pa. 4-H Market Hog Derby. The hog ranked fifth place overall.

Dr. Bill Henning, PSU meats specialist, discusses various aspects of carcass quality during the educational workshop portion of the S.E. Pa. 4-H Market Hog Derby.

WHITNEYVILLE (Tioga Co.) — Brothers Ernest and David Norman and their children paraded their Normandell Jerseys around the showring throughout the day to garner numerous blue ribbons during the District IV Jersey Parish Show, August 16, at the Tioga County Fairgrounds. In the end, the family placed first in ten categories, earned a respectable second or third place nine times, took Senior Champion, Reserve Senior Champion, Grand Champion, and Reserve Grand Champion, all of which led to their being named Premier Breeder and Premier Exhibitor.

But it wasn't a landslide victory by any means for the Normans of Liberty. Only 12 points separated Normandell Farms from the next family farm vying for the Premier awards, proving stiff competition, indeed.

Forty-one cows and 39 calves and heifers took part in the District Show. David Greathouse of Hamburg, PA judged the classes, pronouncing all entries fine looking animals.

Greathouse named Bren-Delite

Wivells Show Grand, Reserve Grand At Elizabethtown

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — The Joe Wivell family of Elizabethtown showed the grand and reserve grand champion Holsteins of the Elizabethtown Fair Thursday.

The grand champion was shown by Joe's son Jason who showed a red-and-white Holstein, Myerose Caveman Katherine, a 3-year-old that produces about 20,000 pounds of milk and is serviced to Cadillac.

Katherine was also named supreme champion of the youth show, which covers all breeds. This year there were one Jersey cow entered and one Guernsey.

Joe Wivell showed the reserve grand champion Holstein, a 4-year-old daughter to his daughter's twice-supreme champion of the Elizabethtown fair, Donegal Creek Kandy.

Kandy, who has since been classified as excellent, had won the title in 1991 and 1992. Joe had her at this year's fair, but a foot injury and timing kept her from looking as good as she can, he said. He said that she has two records over 30,000 pounds of milk and more that 100,000 pounds lifetime.

The reserve champion is Donegal Creek Thor Kelly and she also won the award for best udder of the show. She milked 90 pounds on her second test day.

Justin Wivell showed the reserve grand champion of the youth Holstein show, a black and white Holstein Jess daughter that was first place 2-year-old in the youth division and second to Kelly in the open class competition.

The junior champion Holstein of both the open and junior shows was shown by Marsha Balmer, while the reserve junior champion of both shows was shown by Sarah Kennel.

Balmer also showed a senior Jersey calf to win the grand championship of the Jersey show.

Robert Henisee showed a senior yearling Guernsey to win the grand championship of that show.

Judge of the show was Chris Hill, of Mt. Airy, Md., a professional cattle fitter and auctioneer.

gratulated for producing the ideal hog," said the spokesperson for the judges.

Other champion livestock vying for the supreme title included Peter Hoffines black smooth muscled steer, Jason Wivell's red and white Holstein, Brandon Ziegler's Suffolk-cross sheep, and Kim Ebersole's snowy-white goat.

After the pig was donned the supreme champion, the auction of the champions and selling animals began.

Hatfield Quality Meats purchased the supreme champion hog for $550 and the reserve, shown by Gerald Boyd of Ephrata, for $325.

Bidding was fast and furious for the champion selling lamb owned by Brandon Zeigler who hobbled on crutches. Brandon broke his leg a week ago from soccer playing. Because of crutches, the 12-year-old could not control the enegetic sheep which was held in control by Troy Bollinger. Auctioneer Harry Baehman pressed the crowd to respond to the need by pleading, "Come on folks, this fellow needs to pay a huge doctor bill."

John Ebersole of Speedwell Construction took the top bid for $950. "I gotta support my own grandkid," said Ebersole. Keystone Farm Credit was the contender.

The reserve champion hog owned by Radell Peters of Middletown was sold for $675 to Kunzler and Co.

Sellers Wins Derby Award

From the left, Matt Sellers receives a $250 S.E. Pa. 4-H Market Hog Derby Educational Scholarship from Tom Arnold.

INTERCOURSE (Lancaster Co.) — Matt Sellers, son of Philip and Shirley Sellers, of Thomasville, was named the recipient of the Southeast Pa. 4-H Market Hog Derby Educational Award Saturday evening during the final carcass evaluation and educational workshop held at Stoltzfus Meats Inc., in Intercourse.

The scholarship is offered through the derby to those who have exhibited academic achievement, participation in raising hogs, and on the basis of essay answers to questions on an application. And the $250 scholarship is only available to those who participate in the hog derby.

Sellers has started college this week at the York Campus of Penn State University and said he intends to pursue a degree in dairy and animal science.

A 10-year member of the York County 4-H program as a member of its swine, baby beef and lamb clubs, he has been raising 4-H project hogs for seven years and is currently employed on a nearby farm with a farrow-to-finish operation.

For more information about he scholarship, the market hog derby or 4-H, contact a local extension office.

inch of backfat and a 5.92-inch LEA, it had a lean rate of gain of .841 pounds per day.

Jason Wagner showed the fourth place overall market animal. It was also the reserve champion carcass animal and had an LEA of 6.71 inches and backfat depth of .93 inch. It's show weight was 222 pounds.

The fifth place overall champion shown by Adam Forry, also a son of Gary and J. Lynne Forry, of Manheim, was also the medium-weight champion, and the grand champion on foot. It had a show weight of 234 pounds and a 1.78-pounds-per-day rate of gain.

In sixth place overall was the reserve champion lightweight market hog, shown by Debra Rudy. Rudy's entry weighed in at 35 pounds, had a rate of gain of 1.89 pounds per day, and showed at 224 pounds. The LEA was 6.32 inches, backfat .85 inch, and the 30.5-inch carcass was 52.832 percent lean.

Stacy Krall, daughter of dairy farmers Glen and Linda Krall, of Cornwall, showed the champion lightweight animal, which was also the champion carcass animal. It placed ninth out of the field of 35 entries and had the highest percent lean at 55.453 percent.

Krall's animal weighed in at 61 pounds and finished at 222 with a 1.61 pounds per day rate of gain. It had a 177-pound, 31-inch carcass, an LEA of 6.16 and .55 inch backfat.

Judges for the on-foot competitions were Keith Bryan, Ken Good, and Frank Feaser.

In addressing the audience while selecting grand champion on foot, Feaser said that he is impressed with the entire program and that the youth and parents should be aware of how unique it is, and the quality of education, fun and reward that they are getting that others don't get.

Feaser said that compared to other types of shows, events, youth programs, even other 4-H programs, the derby represents an outstanding opportunity. "All who don't participate lose a very valuable tool to understanding the swine industry," he said.

In fact, many parents and adults have been attending portions of the derby for the educational benefit that they can't get anywhere else.

Two porkchops are displayed during the workshop portion of the S.E. Pa. 4-H Market Hog Derby, to demonstrate the goal of a hog-raising program that doesn't rely on on-the-hoof evaluations for breeding selection. The consumer wants the chop on the right, not the left. The backfat and small loin eye on the left are lost value.

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

THOMASVILLE (York Co.) — A Hampshire-crossbred market hog won Tammi Grubb her first 4-H grand champion swine rosette, presented during the York swine roundup held at Weikert's Livestock Buying Station on August 14.

After the 255-pound winner went through the roundup sale on August 15, the 13-year-old Hanover 4-H'er walked out of the sale ring with $1,530 to boost her livestock enterprise cash flow. The winning hog topped the sale with a $6-per-pound bid from Del-Wood Kitchens, Inc.

Reserve champion honors went to Kelly Myers, Thomasville, with her 245-pound entry. Second offering through the swine roundup sale, it sold on a $4-per-pound bid to Byron Waggoner Construction, Inc.

A cake baked and donated by 4-H parent and extension assistant Lois Rankin first sold to Ezra Good for Hatfield Packing Company. Good donated the cake back. State Hay Show Provides Competition

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — The results of the annual Pennsylvania Hay Show, held during Penn State Ag Progress Days at the Russell E. Larson Agricultural Research Center in Rockspring, were released this week.

The competition is divided into three sections, based on the curing process employeed. Each of the three sections are then broken down into 10 classes of types of hay, repeated identically by the three sections, to provide a fair field for comparison, according to currently popular methods of haymaking.

Section 1 entries included hay that was field cured, or partially field cured, mow finished, and was not treated with heat or preservatives.

The champion of that section was Carl Fouse, of James Creek, with his entry of later-cut alfalfa with no more than 10 percent grasses (Class 2).

The Section 2 entries were those partially field cured and heat dried, but had no preservatives applied.

The champion of Section 2 was shown by Robert Bieber, of Nazareth, whose winning entry was also a sample of later-cut alfalfa (Class 12).

Section 3 entries were those partially field cured with hay preservative applied. The champion was a sample of later-cut alfalfa and grass, mixed so that no less than 10 percent and no more than 50 percent of the hay was grasses (Class 24). It was shown by Virgil Gutshall Jr., of Blain.

All entries in the Pennsylvania Hay Show are automatically entered in the Pennsylvania Farm Show competition.

The lush green foliage of our new alfalfas made us want to do this ad in color.
But when we considered their superior quality, the choice was black and white.

Excalibur II. This lush, deep-green multi-leaf alfalfa yields more tons of hay and puts more pounds of milk in your bulk tank—and looks great doing it. That's because Excalibur II gives you extremely high yields and outstanding feed value. It also stands great, has high disease resistance, and responds exceptionally well to multiple-cut, intensively managed alfalfa programs.

Dividend. This extremely winterhardy alfalfa has 85% multi-leaf expression, the highest in the industry. Dividend's high winterhardiness rating and its outstanding feed value characteristics make this high-yielding alfalfa ideal for the Northeast farmer.

Try these new quality Agway alfalfas. Excalibur II for exceptional, high-quality yields. Dividend for long-term survival and extremely high-quality forage production in cold Northeastern winters.

When it comes to producing milk, they'll make you look good.

90-Year-Olds Just Keep Working And Working

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Although Clarence Harnish is 90 years old, he has no intentions of retiring.

"But now I work about 10 hours a day instead of 15-18," he said.

This year, Harnish stopped raising steers but continues to work most of the 300 acres of ground that he and his son John own.

"Hard work, fresh air, and enjoying things to do," he said were the reasons he is able to work hard when the majority of people his age are no longer able to cope with life.

Harnish's wife Esther of 66 years is 91 years of age. She rises at 5:30 a.m. because she has so much to do.

"A woman's work is never done," she said of the gardening, flower beds, canning, and freezing she does.

As she looks out the window at the apples, blueberry, peach, and plum trees and bushes, she notices apples falling from the trees. She plans to can them that day, not because the couple needs anymore food, but because "I just can't see things going to waste," she said.

The couple married in 1929, at the beginning of the Great Depression, and set up housekeeping with sparse furnishings.

"We had nothing but good health and knowing how to work," Harnish said. "We learned then that you can live without things. If you don't buy what you can't pay for, you'll never owe anyone," Harnish said.

For the first 11 years, in addition to farming, Harnish also knocked on Lancaster City doors to peddle chickens, eggs, and butter that his wife had churned.

Wheat was considered a basic crop and the couple farmed at least 30 acres annually. "Wheat was a big part of our income. We waited until spring to take it to the mill so that we could receive a better price," Harnish said as he reflected on the changes during his lifetime.

"Then, a manure fork was considered a necessity, but today the manure is pumped into tanks.

"It's also easy to move feed from one farm to another — something we couldn't do back then," Harnish said.

But Harnish isn't one to extol the virtues of "the good old days."

"I sure do like the changes," said Harnish as he recalled the slow work of walking after a plow. "I like tractors much better and they do a better job."

In his growing-up years, he often helped his dad who did thrashing for neighbors. The long hard work of loading hay bales is only a memory now as cutting and chopping can be done in one day.

It's easier work for Mrs. Harnish too. She said, "My, we had nine to 11 men at one table when the thrashers came."

She spoke of preparing a big piece of beef, mashed potatoes, noodles, bread, lima beans, cabbage slaw, fruit and pie for the meal. "When the thrashes came, we let other things wait," she said of the never-ending household duties when there were no household appliances to ease the manual workload.

One of Harnish's fondest memories is of Dutch Bucher, the first county agent. Bucher worked closely with Harnish to lay out the farm in 5½-acre strips of corn, hay, and tomatoes in order to save the dark loam soil that was easily washable on his farm. In addition to the strips, Harnish learned to let chopped cornstalks stand over the winter. Bucher also advised him that his soil did not need as much fertilizer as considered popular at the time.

These soil saving efforts resulted in Harnish receiving recognition for having the highest yield and quality shelled corn in Pennsylvania in 1954.

Harnish has always been supportive of higher education. Of the couple's five children, one is a surgeon, another a nurse, and another a school teacher. Harnish, himself, was a choice scholar who excelled in math when he was graduated from West Lampeter Vocational High School.

Harnish's dad kept a close watch on his son's school homework.

"My father was also good at math. When I did my homework, I had to explain how I got the answer and not just show him an answer," Harnish said.

Although the school offered ag courses, Harnish said that his father gave him the best background for successful farming.

"For a long time, I had him looking over my shoulders," Harnish said.

Any disagreements Harnish might have had with his dad were never verbalized. He said, "Sometimes I might have disagreed in my thoughts, but he always won out because my feet were under his table."

When Harnish was graduated from high school, his dad presented him with a new Cleveland car.

"But I didn't get it handed to me. I worked for free for my dad from the time I was 18 until 21 years old," Harnish said.

Harnish's math expertise pays off. When he goes for lumber, he has the price figured out before the sales clerk punches the numbers on the computer.

Harnish said, "I have an inclination to toy with a computer. If I were 15 years younger or still had livestock, I would look into buying one, but at my age, why bother"?

When it comes to equipment, Harnish said that he was always prone to purchase new equipment if it offered a better way to get crops more economically. Through the years - that meant installing a barn cleaner, purchasing a hay baler as soon as World War II was over, a hay crusher, and a mixer to mix their own total mixed rations in which he saw a big gain per day on less food.

Harnish said that he faced the challenge between raising the lucrative money crop, tobacco, and remaining true to his conviction that it was wrong to make money off a product that he wouldn't want his sons to use.

He turned to raising tomatoes instead of tobacco. They also raised laying hens, cows, turkeys, and steers.

"I never regretted it," he said. "It gave me more time to take some Bible study courses and gathering eggs is much better than stripping tobacco," he said.

Through the years, Harnish said that the weather often played havoc on the best laid plans of farmers. One year, he lost all his tomato crop. "But we had cows and chickens so we didn't hurt too badly," Harnish said.

Church work is of prime importance to Harnish, who said that he puts God first in his life. "I have a little talk in the morning with the Lord to find out what the Lord has to say," Harnish said. He also spends 10 minutes daily on his exercise bicycle and some time in a sauna that they installed. He takes a 15-minute nap, which he said relaxes him and allows him to return to work refreshed.

"If I were president, I would pass a law for everyone to have off from 12 to 2 p.m.," he said. That allows time to eat, take a nap, and relax.

Harnish said that he and his wife have always been concerned about what they eat. They eat lots of fruit

(Turn to Page B3)

Harnish and his son John review the bookkeeping records. John said his dad can often calculate figures in his head before people can push calculator or computer buttons.

Clarence and Esther display a photograph of their Strasburg farm where they began farming in 1929. Several plaques have been awarded to Harnish for producing the highest yield and quality of corn in the state.

Ninety-one-year-old Esther Harnish packs a lunch for her husband, Clarence, 91, to take along on his field work.

"A woman's work is never done," says Esther. Even at 91-years-of age, she arises at 5:30 in order to work in her garden and can fruit from the many fruit trees growing on their land.

and vegetables and no fried food or pork since the children were young.

The Harnishes had five children, three sons, and two daughters. One daughter died from an automobile accident in 1980. They now have 11 grandchildren and 12 great grandchildren.

Son John farms a 200-acre farm with 100-head of milking cows. They refer to the different farms as #1, #2, and #3. Number 1 is the 90-acre farm Clarence and Esther moved to when they first set up housekeeping. They lived on it for 45 years, when they built a house on Farm #2, which they had purchased in 1965.

Harnish sold his dairy herd 22 years ago, but continued raising steers until this year.

Harnish thrives on hard work and finds the winter months a little too slow for his liking. During the winter, he is always happy to go for parts for his son who is busy with 100 head of milking cows. Harnish also attends educational events on soil, beef feeding, weed control, and other agricultural-related subjects.

John said, "My dad enjoys going to meetings and he has more time to do it than I do. So he goes and tells me what I need to do."

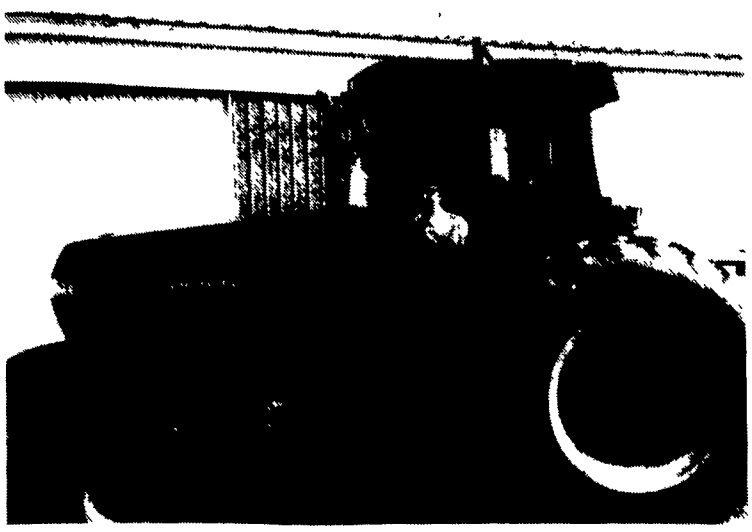
John also allows his dad to choose the seed for planting.

Unlike most folks the ages of the Harnishes, the couple has never been to Florida.

"Maybe we'll go this year," he said.

In 1967, they did go to Israel and surrounding countries for three weeks.

But rather than vacationing, the Harnishes prefer ordinary work days filled with plowing, canning, and enjoying the land.



Instead of working 15-18 hours a day like he used to, 90-year-old Clarence Harnish said that now he only works a 10-hour day.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

The summer seems to be going by so rapidly. It is almost September.

The other week my husband and I spent two days in the mountains of Clinton County. We met big log trucks on narrow and dusty roads. It is interesting to see the variety of cabins that are built for hunting clubs.

One morning was spent fishing in Bald Eagle State Park. The fish must not have been hungry as we did not even get a nibble in three hours. However, we did come home with two nice catfish as another couple gave them to us as they do not eat them. We really enjoyed them when we got home.

Now I am getting the results of planting a 100-foot row of baby lima beans. It surely took me a while to pick eight gallon of them. And, then almost as long to hull them.

My husband had a different job. He planted two elderberry bushes two years ago and now they are bearing. He surprised me by stemming them and making an apple-elderberry pie — his first. I tried to stay out of the kitchen so that I would not give too many suggestions. He asked a few questions but mostly managed on his own. The crust was too rich and crumbly but OK for a first try.

Recently, we attended a big, beautiful wedding of a relative. It was an all day affair and we got to meet cousins that we had not seen for ages. Sometimes the resemblance to parents is uncanny. They say that blood is thicker than water and I suppose it is true. Our biggest wish is for the young couple to have a long and a happy life together.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Earlier this year, I made a vow.

If we just received regular rains through the summer season to grow crops, I solumly promised myself to refrain from complaints about heat, humidity or a mildew-scented house. This personal stance rises from lingering memories of numerous back-to-back years of drought.

So over the last few weeks, when tempted to moan over hay rotting in the fields under gray, leaden skies, I run that promise back through my head as a refresher.

And follow up with a look-around outside.

Cornfields around the neighborhood are thick, tall, and hanging heavy with ears filled with yellowing kernels. Fields of soybeans are equally impressive, lush seas of deep-green leaves shading clusters of pods in which round beans are fattening.

Even while farmers try to cut, dry and harvest third-cutting of alfalfa, muggy days and cool, damp nights have quickly pushed fourth-cutting. Given a little weather cooperation, a good fifth-cutting is a possibility for many farmers we know.

Cattle should eat well this winter. And people, too, though it's doubtful the price of cornflakes will plunge anywhere near the nose-dive that corn grain prices have already made.

Interesting, even amusing, are the creative ways in which Mother Nature's greenery responds to these lush August growing conditions. Stuff growns where you'd never imagine it might.

Like grass. On the lawn. In parts of the garden. Up through teeny cracks in the blacktop drive and along the edges of barn walls. And sprouting in the rain gutters. It's hard to mow grass growing in a rain gutter.

Gutters on the lower side of our farmhouse run along the back-porch roof, right over the concrete basement porch two stories below. Neither of us is ever anxious to clumb a ladder above the concrete porch apron to clean out those high-rise rain gutters. Thus rain gutter cleanout gets pushed aside in the crush of the hectic summertime field and herd chores.

So when a couple of grass seeds, probably dropped by house sparrows, foudn their way into the rain gutter, they took root. And continuing August moisture has encouraged their growth. It gives the porch a sporty, Mohawk-haircut look.

Morning glory seeds tossed there would provide a much more attractive growth. They could cascade and vine down over the back porch posts, sort of like our own Hanging Gardens of Babylon.

Instead, the morning glory vines, annual returning remnants of a single stalk planted ten years or so ago, have crawled merrily out of what was supposed to be the strawberry patch. The vines now form a thick latticework of leaves over the adjoining fence, despite the fact that I have twice treated the area with a contact weedkiller.

For every sprayed morning glory vine that shrivels up, two replacements pop up to fill the gaps. At least their pretty, blue flowers provide a redeeming beauty.

Which is more than can be said for the annual invasion of the ragweed monsters.

Continuing yearly battles with these "trees" have greatly reduced their numbers in the flower beds. However, those remaining shoot to six feet overnight, with hard, inch-thick stems. I always want to yell "Timber!" when lopping off these overgrown pests with the tree-limb-lopper.

And fenceline growth of Mile-A-Minute is so thick and thorny the heifers seem content to stay in the pasture where they belong, rather than fight the tangle.

See. Everything has a bright side. Even weeds.

How To Describe People With Disabilities

Expressing yourself thoughtfully may have a long history, but it is only fairly recently being applied to people with disabilities.

THEN: For centuries, people with disabilities have been subjected to stereotyping and dehumanization through the language used to describe them. While some progress has been made in this century to shed labels such as "crippled," "feebleminded," "deaf and dumb," etc., it is still, unfortunately, the case that people with a disability are seen as a disability first and as a person second. It is this type of stereotyping which reinforces the continued isolation and segregation of people with disabilities, even four years after the passage of the Americans with Disabilities Act.

NOW: It should be remembered that in enacting the Americans with Disabilities Act, Congress consciously chose to refer to people with disabilities as "Americans" first and "disabled" second. Disability, particularly in a country in which there is an Americans with Disabilities Act, need not be a life definition. As we approach the fourth anniversary of this historic Act's enactment, let's remember to "put people first."

We can say... person with a disability, instead of the disabled, the handicapped.

We can say... person with cerebral palsy instead of cerebral palsy victim.

We can say... people with multiple sclerosis, instead of those afflicted with multiple sclerosis.

We can say... person who uses a wheelchair instead of a wheelchair-bound patient.

When we begin to act on this language in a manner that truly sees people as people first, we'll be a long way toward fulfilling the promises of the Americans with Disabilities Act. Happy Anniversary!

Encouraging Responsible Money Handling

As teens head back to school and off to college, now's a great time to talk with them about improving the ways they manage money. Spending money for books, food, gasoline, football tickets and other living expenses can quickly eat up summer savings. Parents can help prepare their children for this and set some ground rules about the support they will provide.

This is especially important if you have a teen who is considering buying a car or if your child has been hounding you saying the spending allowance you provide for each semester is "just not enough to live on." I learned my best lesson about money management one semester when a professor required all her students to keep a running tally of the everyday expenses they incurred. I learned more from that experience than from many other technical budgeting and investment lessons.

I challenge you to do a similar exercise. I also recommend that you reward any teen who agrees to do the same thing for at least one month. What might they learn? "I didn't realize how much I spend on a date!" "Wow! I spend a lot of money eating out." "The prices for my books this semester are much higher than last year." "It's cheaper to do my laundry at a laundramat than in the dorms." "Jennifer borrows money from me every week and doesn't repay it."

"Effective money management is a disciplined behavior. It is a difficult concept to master, and one that is easier when learned early in life," according to the experts at the College for Financial Planning. Author Dorothy Rich explains that self-discipline goes hand in hand with being responsible. If parents find themselves doing things like turning in kids' library books, feeding their pets, watering their plants, finishing their homework, it's time to stop. According to Rich, a parent's "urge is to protect, perhaps even to overprotect. At times we become responsible for our children, often to protect them from unpleasant consequences."

But for a teen, experiencing real consequences is critical. The College for Financial Planning suggests that teens need to learn a core group of lessons about responsible money management. They include:

• determining the differences between needs and wants. (Needs are necessary for survival. Wants make our survival more comfortable.)

• writing clear, realistic goals.

• developing the habit of regularly saving.

• recognizing that getting into debt is much easier than getting out of debt.

Rich explains that children become responsible through an "accumulation of experiences." So start now. PRIOR to making an expensive purchase or before your teen spends a chunk of hard-earned money, talk out how much time and money the routine maintenance will cost. Discuss what you will do (if anything) and what your teen will be responsible for. Also outline the consequences of breaking that responsibility (just in case anyone wants to change his or her mind). Write down these decisions and post them.

These lessons don't come easily. Rich reminds all of us that, "All the lectures in the world will do no good if children see that it's just 'talk.' It's hard, if not impossible, to hold children to certain rules when parents brag about breaking laws. It's hard also when parents seem too good to be true. Have we never been tempted to do anything wrong? It can help when we tell about a temptation and how we handled it."

As the school year begins, provide your teens with opportunities to develop responsible money management skills.

Help Your Child Get Ready For School

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — The approach of a new school year can be an exciting, unnerving, even an intimidating experience for children — especially those who are entering kindergarten or first grade. Although many children have already been cared for outside their home in day-care centers, play groups and nursery schools, entering a "real" school is still a major event in their lives.

"Preschools and day-care centers generally are geared to give children at least some of the individualized, personal care they receive at home," says Dr. Billie Frazier, a human development specialist with the Cooperative Extension Service-University of Maryland at College Park. "Kindergarten, on the other hand, is part of an institution designed to help children meet the requirements of society."

Although a happy preschool experience may promise a comfortable transition into grade school, it isn't a guarantee. To help children move smoothly from home or a day-care center to school, Dr. Frazier offers the following advice:

• Don't make school a topic of daily conversation during the last weeks of summer, but be willing to honestly answer your child's questions.

• Treat going to school as part of the normal course of events, something that is expected. Explain to your child that everyone has a job; your job is going to work every day, his or her job is going to school.

• Don't allow older children to frighten or tease younger children with tales of how awful school is.

• If you work, try to make special arrangements that allow you to be home the first day or two when your child returns from school. If this isn't possible, find other ways to give a little extra attention, such as calling your child at home after school or making plans to do something together when you get home.

• Make sure your child understands any transportatioin plans and arrangements for before- and/or after-school care if you work.

• Let your child know what you will be doing while he or she is at school. Mentioning concrete tasks, such as laundry, vacuuming, writing a report or going to a meeting, can be very reassuring to children.

• Plan ahead for any changes to daily schedules, adjusting meals and bedtimes as necessary; implement the new schedule before school starts to give you and your child time to get used to it.

• Make arrangements to visit your child's teacher and classroom with your child before school starts so that he or she will know where to go.

• Plan to attend meetings and social events for teachers and parents. Get involved in your child's education.

Despite the best planning and reassurances, there is always the chance that your child may balk when it's time to go to school. "That's when you have to grit your teeth, control your protective instincts and push," says Frazier. "Usually, the hardest part is the actual moment of separation. Most children recover quite quickly after that."

By being supportive, interested and patient, she adds, parents can help children overcome their initial fear or uneasiness within a few days. As youngsters become comfortable in their new surroundings, develop trust in their teachers, make friends and discover that some fun and interesting things happen in school, they'll look forward to going to school and forget they were ever afraid.

End-Of-Summer Recipe Melange

Today's recipes are an accumulation of excess recipes from the last few months. Some were received too late for the issue slated, some were duplicate answers, and some did not fit into a particular category.

But they are topnotch recipes that you are sure to enjoy.

HARVARD BEETS

1 tablespoon mochiko rice flour*
½ cup cider vinegar
½ cup water
½ cup honey
2 whole cloves
4 cups sliced boiled beets
Butter, for serving

In a stainless steel or enamel saucepan, stir together the rice flour, vinegar, and water. When smooth, place over low heat and stir honey and cloves. Turn heat to medium and boil 5 minutes until sauce is thick and clear. Add beets. Spoon into containers and freeze.

When ready to serve, place frozen beets in saucepan, add 1 tablespoon butter for each cup beets, and simmer for 20 minutes. *Traditional thickeners such as wheat flour, potato flour, and cornstarch will curdle in the freezer. Mochicko rice flour is the exception. It thickens without curdling at freezer temperatures. Look for it in Asian food markets.

Sopaipillas or Deep Fried Bread as it is often called may be a new recipe for you. According to Bob Downey of Street, Maryland, the hollow "Sofa Pillows" of bread are an immediate favorite of all who try them.

They are easy to make if the fat is very hot and only a few are fried at a time. History reveals they originated in Old Town, Albuquerque, New Mexico about three hundred years ago. They are specially good served with honey. Here is a recipe from Downey.

SOPAIPILLAS

Serves 4

4 cups sifted flour
1 tablespoon baking powder
1½ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons granulated sugar
1 tablespoon shortening
1 cake compressed yeast
¼ cup warm water
1¼ cups scalded milk, cooled to room temperature
2 tablespoons cinnamon
honey (optional)
corn oil

Combine the flour, baking powder, salt, and 1 tablespoon sugar. Cut in the shortening.

Dissolve the yeast in lukewarm water and add to the scalded milk.

Make a well in the center of the dry ingredients. Add the liquid and work into the dough. Knead the dough 15 to 20 times. Set aside about 10 min.

Roll the dough to 1/4 inch thickness. Cut into triangles.

Fry in very hot corn oil (420 F., if you have a fat thermometer), a few at a time until puffy and golden. Drain.

Combine the remaining sugar with the cinnamon. Dust the sopaipillas with the mixture. Drizzle with honey, if desired, before serving.

NOTE: Fry only a few sopaipillas at a time so the fat will stay hot. They should puff up and become hollow immediately.

Consuming Thoughts

Fay Strickler

Penn State Extension Home Economist For Berks Co.

As you all well know, this summer has been a hot one. To beat the heat many folks stay in air conditioning, go swimming, take a cool bath, and drink plenty of water. These all help to bring the body temperature down and make you feel more comfortable.

Since one of the functions of water is to maintain the body temperature it is extremely important to consume it frequently. In fact water is the most important nutrient of the six classes of nutrients in our daily diet (protein, fats, carbohydrates, vitamins, minerals, and water).

A person can survive about 60 days without food and for much longer without certain of the vitamins and minerals, but no one will survive beyond a week without water. A severe lack of water causes the blood volume to shrink thus creating bodily overheating, which can have serious ramifications.

A defiency of water can also result in a buildup of toxic waste products which can stress kidneys and liver. In those performing strenuous physical work, a lack of sufficient water can cause muscle cramps and faintness. Diets extremely high in protein and low in carbohydrate can cause dehydration because the body forms a great deal of urine an in attempt to excrete protein wastes. Excessive use of caffeine-containing beverages and alcohol can also contribute to dehydration because they act as diuretics, increasing urine excretion.

Infants are at risk of dehydration during hot weather because they tend to lose water faster than adults. The elderly are another group often found to be suffering from a lack of sufficient water. In some cases, this is because they are trying to control excessive urination by cutting down on fluids.

The overweight often have problems with water retention and swelling and so will cut down on their fluid intake, a step that may aggravate the overheating.

Adults should have six to eight cups of liquids a day. Milk, sodas, and other energy-rich fluids should not be counted nor should alcohol or caffeine-containing beverages because of their diuretic properties. In addition to fluids taken as such, a significant amount of water is present in food and adds to the body's pool. Plain water is a mild diuretic when taken in sufficient quantities and may actually help that "water-logged" feeling that the overweight may experience. Diet sodas, on the other hand, usually contain sodium which acts to retain water.

Almost any non-alcoholic beverage can be used as a source of fluid. Some choices include lemonade, milk, juices, seltzer, fruit punch, and decaffeinated tea. Since alcohol and beverages with caffeine have a dehydrating effect on the body, it is best to avoid these beverages.

If water loss is great, fluid intake should be increased markedly. Salt tablets can be dangerous and are not recommended. The need for extra sodium can be easily met by using a bit of food containing salt.

Another way to balance your body chemistry level is to eat foods containing a lot of water such as fruits and vegetables.

So as you enjoy the summer fun and the busy schedule of activities, don't forget to drink water.

Macaroon Bread Crumb Cake

3 eggs
1 cup sugar
2 cups crumbs, from very dry oven-toasted bread
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
Pinch salt
¼ teaspoon almond extract
1 teaspoon vanilla

Beat eggs, add the sugar and stir in the other ingredients. Pat the mixture evenly into a well-greased 8-inch square pan; bake in a 300 degree oven for about 30 minutes. The texture and flavor is similar to coconut macaroons and a good way to use stale bread.

ANSWER — A Lititz reader wanted recipes using oat bran. Thanks to Lizzie Beiler, Bird-in-Hand, and to Esther Glick, Lancaster, for sending recipes.

OLD SCHOOL BAPTIST COMMUNION BREAD

About ½ measuring cup plain flour (not self rising). Sift into a small bowl and add only enough cold water to barely moisten the flour. The dough needs to be stiff. At frist, it will barely cling together but after kneading the dough gets smoother and almost shiny.

Knead until perfectly smooth, some times until you hear the dough begin to crack. Too much kneading will cause the dough to blister. Divide into four small biscuits and roll about as thin as pie crust, turning round and round to keep it shapely.

Check off with wheel pastry cutter or a dull knife into ¾ -inch squares that makes it easier for breaking, prick rather closely with fork and bake in not too quick an oven. (Editor's Note: this may mean about 325 degrees). The bread is nicest when baked to a deep cream shade.

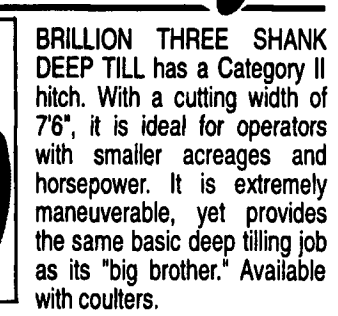
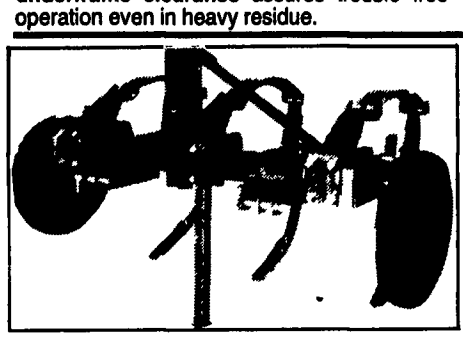
DESIGNED FOR YOUR CONSERVATION NEEDS

Brillion introduces their new Compaction Commander... designed to break up hardpan and compaction as deep as 20". The standard V-shaped alloy point and wear strip leaves residue on the surface with minimal soil disturbance. Auto-reset shanks with 20" of trip height allows for non-stop tillage. Parabolic shanks lift and fracture the soil. 39" of underframe clearance assures trouble free operation even in heavy residue.





BRILLION THREE SHANK DEEP TILL has a Category II hitch. With a cutting width of 7'6", it is ideal for operators with smaller acreages and horsepower. It is extremely maneuverable, yet provides the same basic deep tilling job as its "big brother." Available with coulters.

Quack, Peep, Gobble, Cock-A-Doddle-Do

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

CREAMERY (Montgomery Co.) — Incessant squawking, gentle peeping, quacking, and an occasional cock-a-doddle-doo wafted over the 4-H Montgomery County 4-H Fairgrounds recently.

The sounds came from the tent where Birds of a Feather 4-H'ers assembled to show off their feathered friends.

Nicholas Quinto demonstrates the proper way to hold a duck.

Gavin Bechtle spreads the wing of his chicken for judges to examine.

If it doesn't say quack, peep, gobble, or cock-a-doddle-doo, it doesn't belong to the Poultry Club. That's the message 4-H members wore on their T-shirts.

There were the ordinary ducks and hens and the not-so-ordinary birds such as Bantams, Silkie Hens, Blue Splas Cockin, Yellow Buff Cockin, and Polish Hens.

Some were tiny and some were quite large but all needed to be held in the proper one-hand hold for judging.

The contestants were judged on their calm manner of working with the birds. At the proper time, the contestants needed to run their hands through the feathers, spread the wings, and turn the bird around.

Points were deducted if the showman turned the bird in an awkward position or if, when posing the bird, the showman did not step back for the judges to have a closer look.

4-H'ers become quite attached to their birds when raising them for a project. Many have cages inside their homes for the birds or keep them outside.

It's a project that doesn't take up a lot of room and yet teaches the owner responsibility.

Top winners at the 4-H Montgomery Fair were Jackie Wentzel, 16; Dee Williams, 18; Nicholas Quinto, 15; and Gavin Bechtle, 11.

Raise Rabbits To Show

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

CREAMERY (Montgomery Co.) — Rudy Ziegler raises rabbits. Not just any rabbit, but Champagne D'argents.

Rudy learned how to breed rabbits for show competition by joining the Furry Friends 4-H Rabbit and Cavy Club. About 30 to 40 youth attend the monthly club meetings. They raise a variety of breeds, such as New Zealand, Californian, Creme D'argent, Satin, and Rex.

The rabbits must be tattooed in the presence of a 4-H agent or leader if it is entered into show judging.

Rabbits are judged on ears, eyes, teeth, nose, front legs, tail, body, gender, rear legs, feed, nails, and fur. These characteristics are compared to the ideal standard, which has been determined by the breed association.

When rabbits are shown, the person showing the rabbit places it on a table. The rabbit should be posed toward the judge.

Rudy recently showed Silver Beauty, a 5-month-old rabbit that weighted 8¾ pounds at the Montgomery 4-H Fair.

Rudy said that he breeds the rabbits for body type as stated by the rules.

It takes 28 to 32 days after breeding for the bunnies to be born. On the 27th day, Rudy puts a special nest bow in the rabbit pen. It has sawdust, hay, or straw in the bottom of it. The mother rabbit adds some of her fur to it to make a soft bed for the newborn bunnies, which are born without fur.

As soon as the bunnies are born, the mother covers them with her fur. About five are usually in each litter.

The bunnies' fur begins to grow in about two days, but it takes 10-14 days before they are ready to leave the nesting box.

The mother takes care of the bunnies for six weeks, although they start eating on their own when they are two to three weeks old.

Although they can be separated from their mother when only four weeks old, they do not do well if separated from their siblings before six weeks.

"They are a solitary animal," Rudy said. "The bucks will fight each other if they are put together."

Rudy lives in Spring City, Chester County, where he sells rabbit meat commercially from the farm.

Rudy plans to show his rabbits at the state Farm Show. To meet qualifications, he said, none of the rabbits in the pen can be disqualified. The rabbits must be under 10 weeks of age and not under five pounds.

If you would like to raise rabbits for showing, contact your county extension office or call Peg Hailer at (215) 343-0640.

Rabbit 4-H Clubs Prepare For Farm Show Auction

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

CREAMERY (Montgomery Co.) — Rabbit growers are excited. For the first time ever, their meat rabbits will go over the auction block at the Pennsylvania Farm Show.

That means they need to prepare now, according to Peg Hailey, who is the chairperson for the Farm Show Rabbit department.

The youth who raise rabbits put a lot of effort into it and receive little recognition. The Pennsylvania State Rabbit Breeders have been petitioning the Farm Show Commission to include the rabbit meat pens in the Junior Livestock Auction. But officials were reluctant to include the rabbits, not because they have anything against rabbits, but because time does not permit any additions.

This year, the rabbits will be auctioned not at the closing day auction but at the Saturday night auction.

The rules for the youth meat pens have been completely revised to bring them into par with other livestock projects.

"Youth must start planning now to have their pens ready for Farm Show," Hailey said.

If you want to enter meat rabbits in the Farm Show auction, make sure you study the following rules.

Club Will Get Pork Sales Cookin'

CHICAGO, Ill. — Sales of pork items such as bacon, ham, breakfast chops, and Canadian bacon will heat up this fall with the Great American Breakfast Club promotion for packers, processors, and retailers.

The program, which will run from September through November, is a cooperative effort between the Deli/Prepared Meats Committee of the National Live Stock and Meat Board and the National Pork Producers Council (NPPC). Funding is provided by voluntary processor investments to the Meat Board and pork producer checkoff dollars.

This is the second year for the Great American Breakfast Club theme and Meat Board and NPPC partnership. It is the fifth year of retail breakfast meat promotions by the Meat Board Deli/Prepared Meats Committee. Last year, 82 percent of participating meat merchandisers and managers reported an increase in sales and volume as a result of the program.

What's new for 1994? A national retail display contest will spark increased interest by processors and retailers. NPPC will support qualified advertising through its cooperative funding program.

Sow's Ear Weaves Unique Designs

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

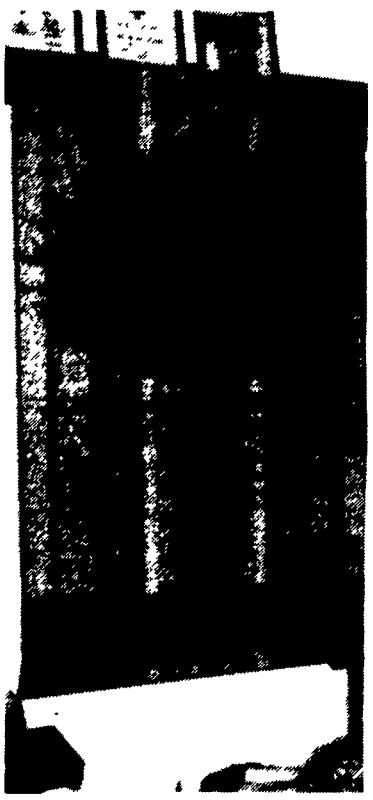
TIRE HILL (Cambria County) — With green thumbs for raising their own produce and nimble fingers that weave wool into masterpieces of art, Laura and Richard Hardin are a middle-aged, self-sufficient couple who enjoy the fruits of their labors.

In addition to selling some of their excellent, artistic wool-woven creations, Laura and Richard teach those with a yen to learn the art of weaving at their home and business location known as, "The Sow's Ear".

They also sell a complete line of very fine natural yarns, crochet hooks, needles, and looms. All yarns are either cotton, wool, or linen. The couple prefers a blend of linen and wool for their own work.

Marketing is done mostly by word of mouth, by their displays at arts centers, and an occasional craft show. Laura plans to do the Fall Foliage Festival in Bedford this October. "I said 'yes,' during a weak moment," she admits. "But, I know I will enjoy it."

Richard shows one of the reproductive patterns produced by Laura.



And they said he couldn't weave a tree.

Laura refers to, "The Sow's Ear," as a natural extension of their efforts toward a self-sufficient lifestyle."

When one questions the connection of a sow's ear and fine weaving, Laura quickly explains. "I wanted to try weaving and began with silk. It just didn't work and I laughed to myself as I suddenly realized I was trying to make a silk purse out of a sow's ear!"

Neither Richard nor Laura have had any professional training in weaving, yet they both produce unique creations which have passed jury for the Pennsylvania Guild of Craftsmen. Their work is presently on display at the Phillip Dressler Center for the Arts in Somerset and at the Dana Gallery at Franklin and Marshall College in Somerset.

The discovery of their talents came about following Richard's thrifty savings plan to purchase a stereo. Visiting their son in New York City, the couple walked downtown to shop for their long awaited entertainment center.

Window shopping as they walked, they saw a weaving demonstration and decided to take a closer look. Within minutes, Laura has convinced Richard that a loom would be a superior purchase to the stereo and the business transaction was completed.

At first, they bought all of their own wool but eventually added several sheep and rabbits to the lawn of their forest surrounded home.

Abigail and Naomi are crossed Karabul and Rambolait and produce wool, Laura says, that is ideal for weaving. Weather can actually affect these sheep to change color from year to year, a very desirable trait. Last year, Abigail

Thom Wheary Family Turns Iron Seat Collection Into Museum Of Learning

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

PARADISE (Lancaster Co.) — "Welcome to the agricultural museum of Lancaster County. I think you will see things you forgot your grandfather did."

For Thom Wheary, Jr., turning 400 old iron farm equipment seats into a museum enterprise is just a matter of sharing what he has learned over the years. In the process of rejuvenating old horse-drawn equipment for the Amish farmers, Wheary found "older stuff that has character," and started buying it before anyone else had an interest. Unlike collectors who pay high prices for scarce pieces, Wheary found his collection while buying and selling farm equipment at local farm auctions over the years.

In the 1800s, farm equipment manufacturers in the U.S. cast their company names in the iron seat that adorned each implement. Since Wheary is a history major, he knew that when the Civil War ended, foundries suddenly stopped making war goods and immediately turned to farm equipment to keep their small businesses going. At the time, 1,200 to 1,500 different foundries had their trademarks cast in iron seats.

Wheary calls his "rusty iron" collection small in comparison to the total that was made. But no one has all the seats and and only a few collections are larger.

"I like to work with my hands," Wheary said. "And when I got out of college, I just naturally worked with my dad fixing up Amish machinery. I found older stuff that has character and bought some pieces and 'rat holed' them away. No one was interested at the time. But I was, and I learned a lot of history in the process."

The new museum is located along Route 30 west of Paradise behind the former Dutch Haven.

"I have several goals," Wheary said. "My children are getting to the age they are looking for summer jobs. Maybe as a family we can do things together around the museum. The learning experience for them is borrowed from the farm family who keeps their children employed while teaching them integrity. Maybe we can do this too.

"In addition, I would like to educate tourists about the farm. At field work time the farmers around here do not have time to answer the questions visitors have about what they are doing."

In addition to the iron seats, the museum has real tobacco hanging in a curing-type setting and an extensive display of the 1800s farm kitchen. The museum has an emphasis on the farm wife.

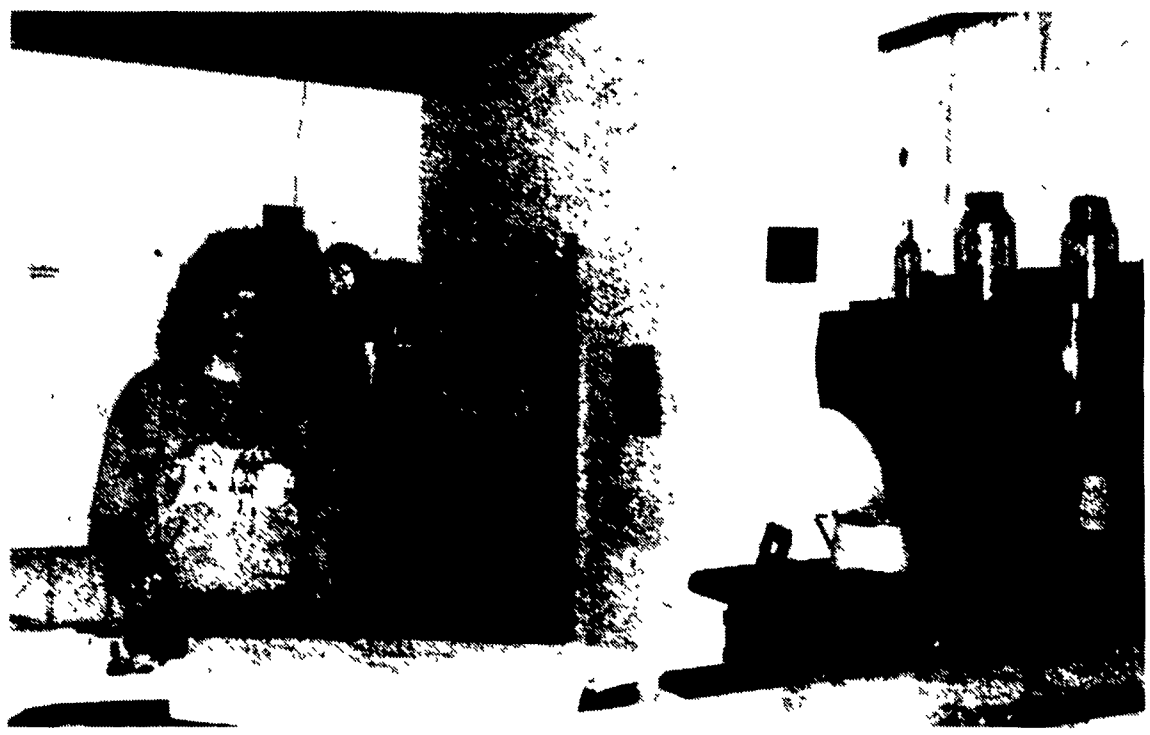
"I want the museum to tell a story," Wheary said. "Many of the things I have collected relate to the early home. The farm wife was the first to recycle things. She used feed bags to make clothes and curtains. She had the first day-care center to care for her own children. Rounding up the dog for the dog tread to power the wooden washing machine while running after the children was all in a day's work."

The old cook stove, sink, wooden ironing board, and irons are only a few of the things you will see in this kitchen.

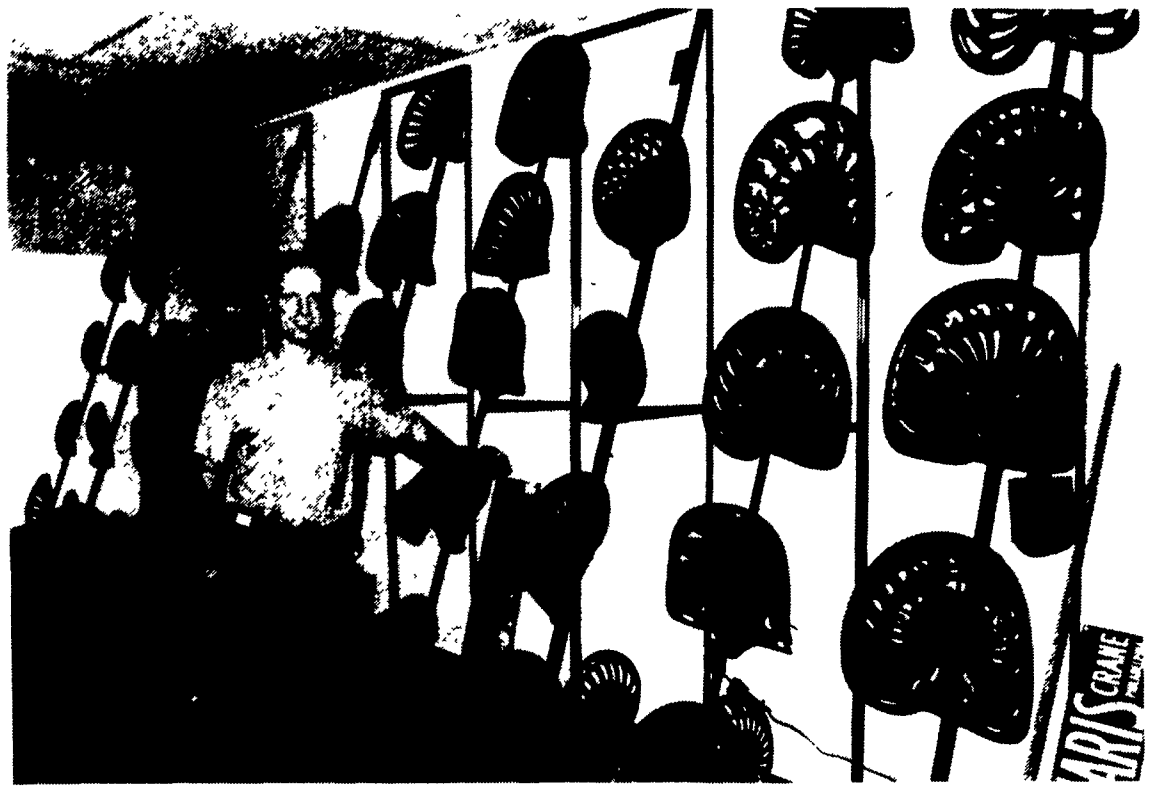
To augment the museum, Wheary has opened a farm toy business in the front shop area. Here he offers to buy, sell, or trade. There are farm toy auctions, but this is designed to be an on-going outlet for merchandising farm toys.

Wheary also has the rights to manufacture the famous New Holland bale elevator which he does at 2971 Lincoln Highway East, Gordonville, PA 17529.

"I enjoy the learning process myself," Wheary said. "I want to share what I have learned with the uninformed. The old-timers die off, and the intelligence they knew dies with them. I'd like to preserve what they knew for future generations."



Beth Ann Wheary poses in the 19th century kitchen that is part of the Lancaster County Farm Museum.



Thom Wheary, Jr., with part of his 400 piece collection of farm equipment seats. Each seat has the name or trademark of the foundry that made the equipment.

alone gave them 19 pounds of wool.

Hand-raised wool is washed carefully to preserve the natural lanolin. The fleece is then dried, carded, and spun. Drying is done using local weeds either in fleece or yarn form.

Laura and Richard have what they believe is the only actively-solar heated spinning and weaving supply shop anywhere. Two of the walls are made of "doors" which open to admit natural light and direct heat, and close to put heat into storage. A small woodburning stove, seldom used, supplements the usually ample solar heat.

"We do not do production weaving," assures Laura. "We use no automatic fly shuttles, no computer-controlled looms, no equipment more suitable to a factory than a home. Our weavings are one-of-a-kind. We usually design our own threading patterns.

Richard's weavings are totally self-created. When a professional weaver told him he could not weave a tree, he proved otherwise.

Laura, on the other hand, concentrates on historic reproductions, studying patterns in old history books. Eventually, she hopes to write her own book on creating tapestry forms complete with photographs of her reproductions.

Following the stereo barter, Richard and Laura have purchased several more looms, the most valuable being a Harrisville teaching loom. The warp set is detachable which allows for several students to take lessons without disturbing the weaving. "Within five minutes I can change the warp to suit the student," Richard explains.

Among their prize students is Karl Kauffman, well-known Pennsylvania Sheep shearer who, along with his team members, won first-place in the sheep to shawl contest at the Pennsylvania State Farm Show last year. It was Karl who did the weaving.

Some students come from as far away as Pittsburgh, a several hour drive from their Johnstown home.

It's a busy life for this couple who both suffer from arthritis. They raise their own wide variety of vegetables which includes such unusual speciments as the Jersualsm artichoke. They also pick blueberries, cherries, and apples to can, dry, or freeze and purchase all organically grown barley, corn, oats, and mullet to bake their own bread.

As the couple works they often think about the history of their location. In the mid 1800s a carding mill was located there to prepare wool for spinning. "We think about that as we card our own wool," Laura says thoughtfully.

FFA Happenings

FFA Members Win At States

Twin Valley FFA returned from state FFA competition at Penn State with a first place dairy foods team, the top individuals in the interview and dairy foods contests, the new state FFA chaplain, and the second place forestry team.

More than 1,200 FFA members and advisors from chapters across Pennsylvania gathered at Penn State for the 65th annual state FFA summer convention and state contests in 26 areas.

Capturing first place in the interview contest was Melissa Tyson of Birdsboro. Missy, the daughter of Dona and Gregory Tyson, had to write a letter applying for a job, complete an actual job application, and then actually be interviewed for this job.

In the dairy foods contest, Michelle Powell captured first place and led the Twin Valley team to a first place finish. Other team members were Crystal Peterson, who placed third; Michelle Steve, who placed 15th; and Rob Deeds, who placed 20th.

Dairy foods competitors take written tests on milk production and milk marketing and also solve milk marketing problems. They must detect off-flavors in milk and assign numerical scores to the milk samples, identify mastitis in milk samples, detect defects in milker parts which could be harmful to that cow, identify different cheeses, and differentiate between real and artificial dairy products. Michelle Powell is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Scaramuzzino of Rockville, Crystal is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Peterson of Honey Brook, Michelle Steve is the Daughter of Mrs. Jane Yohn of Birdsboro, and Rob is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Deeds of Birdsboro. The dairy foods team will now represent Pennsylvania in national FFA competition in Kansas City, Mo. in November.

In forestry competition, Twin Valley captured second place in a very close contest. Megan MacBride finished third, Tara Plewa, sixth, and Larry Medaglia 12th. Forestry contestants also take a written test and do forestry problem solving. They must identify common Pennsylvania trees, equipment used in forestry, measure the diameter of trees and estimate the timber volume in each tree and a premarked stand, and tell how to manage a forest stand. Megan is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Macbride Elverson, Tara is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Plewa of Honey Brook, and Larry is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Medaglia of Elverson. The team will now represent Pennsylvania in competition at the Eastern States Exposition in Springfield, Mass. in September.

In wildlife competition, Melissa Makris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Makris of Honey Brook, placed third with a gold medal. Melissa had to take a written test on her knowledge of wildlife, correctly identify 25 birds from a list of more than 200, identify common Pennsylvania mammals, identify common wildlife foods, identify wildlife tracks, identify bird calls, identify signs of various wildlife species, and finally, at two different sites, identify the wildlife species you would expect to encounter at these sites.

In public speaking competition, two members earned gold medals. Joellyn Kinsey earned a gold mnedal in the junior prepared speaking contest with her prepared speech on pet therapy. Joellyn is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Kinsey of Green Hills. Junior prepared speeches are 3 to 5 minutes long with a 5 minute question and answer period at the end. Only first year FFA members may enter the junior prepared contest. Joellyn placed 5th in the state. In the conservation speaking contest, Amy Jo VanBodegraven placed 7th with a speech on the American Bald eagle. AmyJo's speech was 5 to 7 minutes long with 5 minutes for questions and answers afterwards. AmyJo is the daughter of Susan Fox of Birdsboro.

Other Twin Valley students earning awards were Jason Redmond who received a bronze medal in the livestock judging contest and Heather Dougherty who received a gold medal as a chapter delegate. The chapter scrapbook also received a silver medal. Jason is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Redmond III of Plowville. Heather is the daughter of Mrs. Debra Dougherty.

Ben Dodd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Dodd of Geigertown, was elected as state FFA chaplain for the 1994-1995 school year. Ben will serve the state FFA along with 10 other state officers to visit chapters across the state and participate in numerous activities.

Other Twin Valley students who participated in the various contests were Jarad Moyer - wildlife; Tom Lakeman and Ed Gegenheimer - small gas engines; Rose Samojeden, Mathan Messner, and Megan Charron - horse judging; Greg Lund and Carla Kurtz - nursery/landscape; Jim Lakeman - livestock judging; Andy Risbon, Adrienne Neff, and Steve Roehm - aquatic resources. Twin Valley students were accompanied by chapter advisor and agricultural science teacher Ronald Frederick.

Farmer Cultivates Good Will Through Tours

LEWES, Del. — "Why are all those cows wearing price tags?" a first-grader asked Walter Hopkins during a recent tour of his dairy farm. It wasn't a price, of course; it was a numbered tab attached to the cow's ear for identification. But for Hopkins, a Delaware dairy farmer, the question was an opportunity to teach about a subject close to his heart — agriculture.

"You have to really want to tell children about farming when you invite them for a tour in between planting corn and cutting alfalafa — it's our busiest season," Hopkins says. Yet he knows that education is the first step to understanding, and a firsthand experience has more impact than a picture in a book.

Hopkins graduated from the University of Delaware in 1970 with a degre ein agricultural engineering. After a tour of duty in Vietnam, he returned to the family farm. Today he milks a 450-head dairy herd on 1,000 acres in Sussex County near Lewes. Hopkins' father William, who began farming there with six cows more than a half century ago, is still actively involved in the operation.

Hopkins gives dairy tours as a part of a Sussex County 4-H agricultural learning experience. The tours target children from kindergarten to second gade. They see the dairy operation from calving area to the automated milking parlor and feeding stations.

Other parts of the tour are handled by 4-H'ers, cooperative extension agents, master gardeners and master food educatiors, who set up demonstrations and exhibits that illustrate how much agriculture affects lives every day.

Hopkins, a former 4-H'er who last year won the state 4-H award of recognition for leadership and success in agriculture, says he's happy to do his part in helping the next generation learn about agriuclture. Hopkins adds that he doesn't have to wonder if his investment is paying off. He knows it is.

"When I get the children's thank-you letters, drawings and posters later in the mail, I know I'm getting through to them," Ho;kins says. "Their drawings show that they've learned something about where their food comes from. It's worth it."

Delaware dairy farmer Walter Hopkins explains to elementary-school children how cows are milked in an automated dairy operation.

You Ask ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? You Answer

This column is for readers who have questions but don't know whom to ask for the answers.

"You Ask — You Answer" is for non-cooking questions. When a reader sends in a question, it will be printed in the paper. Readers who know the answer are asked to respond by mailing the answer, which will then be printed in the paper.

Questions and answers to this column should be addressed to You Ask — You Answer, Lou Ann Good, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522.

QUESTION — Peg Koser, Lancaster, asks how to remove odors such as cantaloupe, onions, and cucumbers from plastic containers.

QUESTION — C. Van Horn, Mt. Pleasant Mills, would like to know what works and is safe to remove yellow and grease stains from old china dishes, especially ironstone. She would like something that makes the dishes white again.

QUESTION — E. Otis Dyer, Rehoboth, Mass., would like to know the name of the company in Pennsylvania, the address, and if the company is still in business — the one that makes a farm fence kit consisting of two channel irons and hinges. The farmer supplies the wooden cross piece measuring 2x8-inches and barbwire strands.

QUESTION — Charles E. Wright, Duncannon, purchased a 13-inch parlor stove made of iron with the following marks: On the front spark inside is written Gray Iron Casting Co., Mt. Joy, Pa. On the inside top door 75-11; on the poker 7517. The doors, drafts, etc., would look like a full-sized stove. Is this company still in business?

QUESTION — D. Newsom, Cooperstown, N.Y., would like to buy an Aladdin Lamp that is either electric or oil or kerosene, but not the Aladdin mantel type. He wants the shape, the kind rubbed for a wish in the story of the Magic Lamp.

QUESTION — Nancy Cummings, Bolivar, would like to know why celery plants go to seed. She has grown celery all her life and the last two years, some of the plants go to seed instead of developing a nice stalk.

QUESTION — M. Carver writes: What a surprise in our garden when we discovered the local nursery supplied us with cabbage plants instead of brussels sprouts. We would like to know how they are handled while fresh.

QUESTION — Betsy Dehn, Spencerville, Md., writes that when she was young, there was a story that went something like this: It was nearing the Christmas holidays and the apple tree was feeling sad and forlorn. His branches were bare and plain whereas the pine tree was decorated with tinsel and glitter. The apple tree complained to God and God said to the apple tree that he would give the tree a special gift. Betsy doesn't remember the remainder of the story, but God ended up putting a Christmas star in the heart of each apple. If you cut an apple crosswise, you will find a perfectly shaped five-point star in the heart of the apple. Betsy would like to have the complete story of how the star came to appear in the center of the apple.

QUESTION — Shirley Baer, New Freedom, would like handmade aluminum made during the late 1930s and 1940s, especially those with designs of animals, flowers, and fowl.

ANSWER — A reader wanted to know if someone has a grain scale that can be bought to weigh saffron or gunpowder. Thanks to Nancy Howe who writes that she has several non-electronic scales with weights to sell. Write to Nancy Howe at R.1, Box 157A, Turnbridge, VA 05077 or call 1 802-763-8911.

This auction only accepts items that will be sold without reserve or without minimum bid, and that is how they are advertised. The law in Illinois in regards to auctions without reserve state that once an item is put up for sale, it must be sold without the owner or someone on the owners behalf bidding on it. Due to early ad deadlines this ad was written on August 20, 1994. Much more equipment will be added by sale day. Last sale we had 56 combines. Most of our combines have been through the shop and are field ready. We have bank closeout equipment, farmers retiring, and individuals listed. Machinery, tractors, and combines will be mixed. We will start selling machinery at about 10:00 A.M. All equipment sells absolute without reserve or minimum. Excellent lunch provided by First reformed church of Wichert Mission Committee. Proceeds are going to our missionaries. We have delivery available to any where in the USA or Canada, open 6 days a week. Look forward to seeing you on September 7 at 9:30 AMCST for more info., pictures, or brochures please call:

AMINOTEK®

HERE'S WHAT THEY'RE SAYING

Bedford Dairy Herd Increases 14 lbs. of Milk on AminoTek... Through Summer Heat Wave!!!

The Grubb's were excited when their herd responded to AminoTek with a 17 lb. milk increase this spring. But when their herd responded with another 14 lb. increase when they started to feed an AminoTek based top dress...and during the hottest June on record, they couldn't believe it.

On their July 6 DHIA test, they had 21 of their 38 cows milking over 70 lbs.. Six were over 110 lbs., three over 120 lbs. and one was over 130 lbs..

Ray Grubb and his herdsman, Wendell Guyer, say that "The Master Mix AminoTek feed program has given us a great economical answer to some problems we were having. We have seen a terrific response in milk production, along with improved breeding and overall herd health.

We also appreciate the thorough service we get from Gene Barefoot, our Master Mix District Sales Manager for Bedford and Blair Counties. He works very close with us and we're really pleased."

AminoTek Helps Rolling Herd Average Increase 5,000 Pounds In 3 Years

"After 3 years on AminoTek, our herd average has gone from 16,000 lbs. milk to 18,000 lbs. milk to over 21,000 lbs. milk. Our tank average has stayed over 80 lbs.. for over 3 months with no BST! This spring we had one cow peak at 149 lbs.. milk!

I'm well pleased with the Dry Cow Program and the PreLact Pellets. Our herd health and reproduction have gotten alot better since switching from a previous mineral program."

Spreader Holds Up To 400 Cubic Feet

MORGANTOWN (Berks Co.) — Stoltzfus Spreaders introduces a new larger sized poultry litter spreader (PLS) which holds up to 400 cubic feet of litter, reducing the number of trips farmers make to fields.

The Stoltzfus PLS can apply 6000 pounds of poultry litter per acre. It is built of heavy gauge "Cor-Ten" steel for durability and longer life, and is capable of spreading a variety of materials normally difficult to spread, such as stockpiled lime.

Magnum Tractor Reaches Milestone

RACINE, Wis. — Case Corporation recently added another entry to the farm history books when it built and shipped the 50,000th Case International Magnum™ tractor.

The production milestone will be celebrated with a limited series of Magnum Mark 50 Edition tractors to be sold throughout the U.S., Canada and select international markets. The commemorative tractors will carry unique Mark 50 graphics inside and out and special paint scheme.

"If you think about it, only a few high points have made a revolutionary mark on the evolution of the modern tractor," said Rich Christman, Case Corporation senior vice president, sales and marketing-North America. "Until we introduced the 7100 Series Magnum tractors, tractor design had stayed basically the same for over 20 years. A handful of pivotal changes like shift-on-the-go transmissions and hydraulics were separated by long stretches of relatively minor product innovation. Magnum represents the last great revolution in tractor technology."

Case Corporation is producing a limited number of this "Magnum™ Mark 50 to commemorate the 50,000th Case International Magnum tractor.

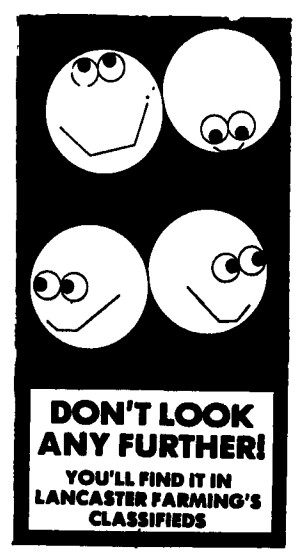
Farm Credit Earnings Up

LEWISBURG (Union Co.) — Second-quarter 1994 earnings for Northeastern Farm Credit, ACA were reported at $677,000, an increase of 10.6 percent over the same period of 1993, according to quarterly financial statements.

Net earnings on the $198 million loan portfolio of the association increased by $95,000 in the second quarter over the same period of 1993. Association officials attributed this increase to improved net interest income.

A reversal in the provision for loan losses in the second quarter of 1994 also contributed toward improved earnings, and reflects gains in overall loan portfolio credit quality this year. Adversely classified loans dropped to 7.4 percent of trhe total loan portfolio at June 30, 1994, as compared to 7.9 percent at year-end 1993.

Loan volume, at June 30, 1994, was up $600,000, or 0.3 percent from March 31, 1994. However, loan volume has declined $3.8 million, or 1.9 percent, from year-end 1993. The trend toward stabilization in lending activity was attributed primarily to the resolution of distressed loans.



Hess To Head National Trade Group

WILLOW STREET (Lancaster Co.) — Lloyd E. Hess, Hess Meats, Inc., was elected to serve as president of the American Association of Meat Processors (AAMP) for the 1994-1995 term.

Hess has been involved in his family's meat business since 1978 and is currently vice president and treasurer of the operation.

Hess has served AAMP as a board member for two years and was on the 1994 Convention Committee. He has been active with numerous other association committees and activities as well as serving the Pennsylvania Association of Meat Processors in various capacities.

The event also included a tour of Ciba Seeds research facilities in Research Triangle Park, N.C. and Ciba's Crop Protection research facility in Greensboro where district managers were familiarized with the latest research techniques. Biotechnological developments were also discussed, particularly as they related to European Corn Borer resistance.

Dauberman joined Hoffman Seeds in May and is responsible for Hoffman's central Pennsylvania sales territory.

Tests Show Steers Right On Target

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Results just tabulated from steer feeding tests in Kansas, Virginia, and Ohio show that Polled Hereford and Polled Hereford-cross cattle meet and exceed industry standards for efficiency and carcass quality. Sixty breeders consigned steers to the tests.

Steers fed at D&D Feedlot, Urbana, Ohio, racked up an average lean value per day of age of $2.15. Top owner groups and sire groups posted yield grades of 2.0 to 2.6. Ribeye area/cwt. in the leading groups ranged from 1.137 to 1.05 sq. in., and the leading average daily gains ranged from 4.6 to 3.6 lb. Every steer in the top groups graded Choice.

At the Kansas National Test, held at MidAmerica Feedyard, Great Bend, Kan., top pens ranged from 2.16 to 2.66 on yield grade; 1.20 to 1.12 for ribeye area/cwt.; 4.21 to 3.76 for average daily gain, with all top groups landing in the Choice quality grade.

In the test conducted at Horseshoe Farm, Rapidan, Va., the retained ownership program test posted costs of gain from $0.46 to $0.47 for the leaders, with average daily gains for top individuals ranged from 3.93 to 3.73 lb. More than 90 percent of the steers tested were Yield Grade 2 and 3, with 66 percent grading Choice.

"Our breeders ar encouraged to document and prove how their cattle feed," said Dr. John Hough, American Polled Hereford Association vice president for education and research. "The top calves in each of these tests would be the envy of most breeders and feeders.

Plans are under way for the next series of tests. For more information, contact the APHA Education and Research Department, 11020 NW Ambassador Dr., Kansas City, MO 64153-2034, (816) 891-8400.

EPA WORKER PROTECTION STANDARD (WPS)
COUNTDOWN TO COMPLIANCE ...

✓ AUGUST
SEPTEMBER
NOVEMBER
DECEMBER
→ JANUARY 1, 1995

August 1994

What Is the EPA Worker Protection Standard

The Worker Protection Standard (WPS) is a regulation issued by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. It covers pesticides that are used in the production of agricultural plants on farms, forests, nurseries, and greenhouses. The WPS requires you to take steps to reduce the risk of pesticide-related illness and injury if you, your family, or your employees use or are exposed to such pesticides.

If you are an agricultural pesticide user and/or an employer of agricultural workers or pesticide handlers, the WPS requires you to provide to your employees and, in some cases, to yourself and to others:

1. Information about exposure to pesticides;
2. Protection against exposures to pesticides;
3. Ways to mitigate exposures to pesticides.

In Pennsylvania, the Department of Agriculture (PDA) is responsible for the enforcement of the WPS. PDA is working with the Penn State Pesticide Education Office and numerous agricultural associations to provide outreach services and educational materials to agricultural employers and workers.

Overview of Current EPA WPS Requirements

Congress recently enacted legislation to delay implementation of some but not all of the WPS until January 1, 1995, to provide the agricultural community with more time to learn about the WPS and to prepare for its implementation. There are two types of WPS provisions on the label: those that are fully spelled out on the label, and those that are only referenced on the label.

During 1994, you must comply with the WPS requirements that are spelled out on the label. These include the label requirements for personal protective equipment (PPE), the restricted-entry interval (REI), and the requirement for "double notification," if this is required on the label. Double notification requires both oral warning and posting warning signs at entrances to treated areas.

You do not need to comply with the WPS requirements simply referenced on the label until January 1, 1995. These requirements include pesticide safety training for agricultural workers and handlers, decontamination sites, notification of workers about pesticide applications (except the "double notification" requirement described above), display of information about pesticide applications, emergency assistance, and display of the pesticide safety poster.

Key WPS Definitions

The following "key" definitions will help you determine whether you or your business operation are affected by the requirements of the EPA WPS.

Agricultural plants: Plants grown or maintained for commercial or research purposes. Examples: food, feed, and fiber plants, trees, turf grass, flowers, shrubs, ornamentals, and seedlings.

Farms: Operations, other than nurseries or forests, that produce agricultural plants outdoors.

Forests: Operations that produce agricultural plants outdoors for wood, fiber or timber products.

Greenhouses: Operations that produce agricultural plants indoors in an area that is enclosed with nonporous covering and is large enough to allow a person to enter. Examples: polyhouses, mushroom houses and caves, and rhubarb houses, as well as traditional greenhouses. Malls, atriums, conservatories, arboretums, and office buildings that grow or maintain plants primarily for decorative or environmental benefits are not included.

Nurseries: Operations that produce agricultural plants outdoors for: 1. transplanting to another location, or 2. flower or fern cuttings. Examples: flowering and foliage planting or trees; tree seedlings; live Christmas trees; vegetable, fruit, and ornamental transplants; and turf grass produced for sod.

Crop Advisor: Any person who is assessing pest populations, damage, distribution, status, condition, or requirements of agricultural plants. (Crop/IPM consultants, field scouts)

Workers: Anyone who is (1) employed for compensation (including self-employed); (2) performing tasks such as harvesting, pruning, weeding, watering, etc., in the production of agricultural plants.

Pesticide handlers: Anyone who is (1) employed for compensation, (2) performing tasks including mixing, loading, or applying pesticides; assisting in pesticide applications, cleaning, repairing, or adjusting spray equipment or acting as a flagger.

WPS Information Sources & Compliance Assistance Material

The following publications are available from County and Regional Cooperative Extension Offices, the Penn State Pesticide Education Office at University Park, and through many agricultural associations and organizations.

2. Protect Yourself from Pesticides: A Guide for Agricultural Workers (English/Spanish).

3. Protect Yourself from Pesticides: A Guide for Pesticide Handlers.

4. Protect Yourself from Pesticides: Color Safety Poster (English/Spanish).

Gempler's Inc. provides a wealth of WPS compliance materials and offers a single free copy of its Reference Guide for EPA's Worker Protection Standard to growers. Call Gempler's at 800/382-8473 or FAX 800/551-1128.

✓ August Compliance Checklist:

___ Obtain a copy of EPA's WPS "How To Comply" Manual.

___ Review Units 1 & 2 (Quick Reference & Introduction) of "How To Comply" Manual.

___ Review all pesticide product labels currently being used for WPS requirements "spelled-out" on label.

___ Implement all WPS requirements "spelled-out" on the label of pesticide products being used.

September's "Countdown To Compliance" Topic: 1994 vs 1995 EPA WPS Requirements. What Compliance Steps Should I Be Taking Right Now?

"Countdown To Compliance" is a cooperative educational effort of the PA Department of Agriculture, Penn State Office of Pesticide Education, Penn State Cooperative Extension Service, PA Farm Bureau, PA Farmers Union, PA State Grange, PA Vegetable Growers Assoc., PA Christmas Tree Growers Assoc., Adams County Fruit Growers Assoc., PA Farmer Magazine, and Lancaster Farming Newspaper. Copies are available by contacting PA Farm Bureau, Gov. Relations Division.

Prices Good At Bedford Livestock Sale

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) All records were broken with the sound of the auctioneer's hammer for the $25 per pound paid for the Grand Champion Market Lamb at the Bedford County Fair.

Bought by H. Dean Lemley, an owner of Graystone Galleria, an antique and gift emporium, the 125-pound market lamb was raised by Bill Miller of Schellsburg.

Lemley paid $9.50 per pound for the lamb champ last year.

Bob Turkovich, owner of American Outfitters, headquartered in Bedford, bid $15 per pound for the reserve champion lamb, owned by Andy Blackburn of Bedford, and weighing 115 pounds.

The high bidding for the lamb was only the first of a number of good things to happen at the Saturday, August 13 sale.

John Holbert, Bedford County Fair Manager told the hundreds of spectators and bidders in the dark, hot, sale barn that it was the last year they would have to put up with these conditions.

78th District Rep. Dick Hess has obtained a $15,000 grant towards construction of a show and sale arena.

Willard Campbell of Hoss's Steak and Sea Houses chain donated an additional $5,000 towards the construction.

Campbell then paid $8.25 a pound for the grand champion 1,232 angus/mix beef shown by Nathan Claycomb of Osterburg, and then ordered it resold.

Proceeds from the second sale went towards the new arena. This bid came from Bob Sweet, owner of Creative Pultrusions, Inc., Pleasantville who contributed $1,121 to the arena's construction.

It marked the fourth year Claycomb has won the Grand Champion Market Steer award.

As the sale progressed, young livestock exhibitors joined in the pledging.

Bob Turkovich paid $2.50 per pound for the Reserve Grand Champion steer owned by Bill Miller, who also had the market lamb champion.

Willard Campbell is also the owner of Bedford Ford and, on that business's behalf, bid $16.50 per pound for the 246 pound market hog shown by eight-year-old Jessica Smith of Everett Rd.

With only two animals in the show, both hogs, Jessica said she was very surprised when seh won the championship. "But, pleased," she added, smiling broadly.

Turkovich bought the reserve champion hog from Doug Koontz also of Everett Rd. for $7.50 per pound.

Nathan Claycomb showed his fourth grand champion market steer and sold it to Bill Campbell for $8.25 per pound.

Jessica Smith sold her grand champion market hog for $7.50 per pound.

Bill Miller with the grand champion market lamb that sold for a record price of $25 per pound to Dean Lemley of Graystone Galleria.

Bill Miller also showed the reserve grand champion steer. Bob Turkovich bought this steer for $2.50.

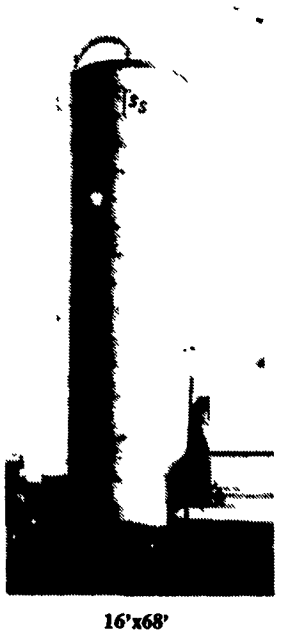
CONSIDER THE MANY CONCRETE ADVANTAGES!

"A GOOD JULY RAIN GROWS A LOT OF GRAIN!"

With The Prospect Of A Good Corn Crop, It's Time For Many Producers To Make Decisions Concerning Storage.



16'x68'
about 10,000 bu. cap.
Shelled Corn
Poured Concrete
No Used Silos!
No Rebuilt Silos!
No Preowned Silos!!

In order to avoid hauling and drying costs, let us build a corn storage unit to preserve your valuable grain at 20%-30% moisture.

To keep your stored corn bright and yellow, you must protect it from oxygen and heat. Our 6" thick concrete walls reflect 38% of light beams, resulting in 780 times more heat-resisting ability than steel, and 25 times more insulating power than steel.

Our 6" thick walls have a very low leak potential compared to pre-fab silos of any kind, and a very low maintenance requirement.

BEFORE SPENDING A LOT OF MONEY FOR ENERGY TO DRY YOUR CORN, YOU WILL DO WELL TO CONSIDER THE MANY ADVANTAGES OF OUR POURED CONCRETE SILOS...

To unload your corn, we can install the simple auger system, the Laidig 43 unloader, or the Flying Dutchman. Let's discuss the options, and what is best for your situation.

NOTHING WORKS LIKE A SILO — Sollenberger Silos Corp. — SS

TOWER SILOS:
HIGH PROFIT STORAGE FOR HIGH ENERGY FEEDS

Preserving high energy corn silage is obtained only through efficient, effective storage. Storage that saves the most nutrients. Storage that delivers the highest overall long term benefits. Storage that offers better total performance than any other method of preserving valuable corn silage.

Tower silos control the fermentation process and retain the most feed. With tower silos you'll get better feed...more feed...with lower overall costs and less labor than any other storage method.

"When it comes to high profit storage for high energy feeds, other systems just don't measure up."

You may pay less for some dairy farm equipment... but it can cost you more!

Equipment costs are not the only cost of cooling milk

In the long run, total operating costs of a Mueller milk-cooling system are generally substantially less than those of "bargain-brand" milk-cooling equipment.

Example	Mueller	Competition
Cost of equipment	$41 000	$28 000
Cost of electricity @ 08 kW for 12 000 lbs milk/day for 10 years	$17 550	$22 850
Total operating cost for ten years	$48 550	$50 850
Savings	$ 2 300

Pork Industry Picks Up Speed

CHICAGO, Ill. — By continually improving their product, pork producers will be well on the road to increasing pork consumption, according to the experts — a panel of consumers.

The consumer group was part of a seminar during the National Live Stock and Meat Board's Demand Strategies '94 conference in Chicago. The session, "On the Road to Pork Quality: What Mile Marker Are We At?," featured a live consumer focus group and a look at measures the industry must take to improve quality and increase demand for pork.

The focus group gave the audience of pork industry leaders an opportunity to see consumers as they looked at and reacted to pork products. Ten Chicago-area women of diverse ages, ethnicity and lifestyles talked frankly about their food-purchasing habits in general and specifically about pork. The consumers did not learn that their audience was the pork industry until the end of the focus group.

Some of the women purchase pork from supermarkets, and others buy meat from butcher shops. Their pork consumption frequency ranged from four times a week to two times a month.

All but one woman consider nutritional aspects when purchasing food. Most are aware of the new nutrition labels, although not everyone reads them.

What qualities do the consumers look for when purchasing pork? More meat than bone, less fat, fat they can easily trim off, pink color, and freshness. They also are concerned about the fat and cholesterol levels in pork.

A twist to the focus group session was showing the group typical pork products purchased at a Chicago supermarket and then unveiling top-grade, case-ready cuts from a Midwest packer.

The consumers rated the products purchased at the grocery store from very poor to excellent. Problems noted were inconsistencies in products in the same package, too much fat and poor color. Some of the women were surprised at the number of cuts and various cutting styles available.

The case-ready -- customer ready, as the packer calls it -- received rave reviews. The gist was the consumers would purchase pork more frequently, and possibly pay more, if consistent, high-quality products were available and they had more information about how to prepare pork.

"We have many opportunities to better serve the consumer if we have consistent, high-quality pork products," said Bill Kuecker, Meat Board director of pork scientific affairs. "But to achieve this, everyone along the pork chain -- including geneticists, producers, packers and distributors -- must work together."

Avenues to increase the demand for pork are being explored by the Pork Chain Quality Audit. The objective is to obtain World Class Pork by the year 2000. The audit was initiated in 1992 and is a project of the National Pork Producers Council (NPPC) in cooperation with the National Pork Board.

"World Class Pork will meet or exceed quality and safety standards and will be continuously improved," said David Meeker, NPPC vice president of research and education.

He noted that improvements under producer control include fat content, PSE, inconsistency of color and carcass defects. "Advances in these areas will lead to pork that is tops in taste, value, leanness, color, packaging, freshness, safety, shelf-life, reputation, versatility and convenience," Meeker said.

These are the qualities consumers are looking for in pork, as revealed by the Chicago focus group and confirmed by consumer studies conducted as part of the quality audit.

"Results of the studies showed that consumers crave variety, but they need education about the safety and menu possibilities of pork," said Barry Pfouts, NPPC vice president of consumer product marketing. "Pork is uniquely positioned for the future and can be the meat of choice by the year 2000."

But to reach this goal, the industry must overcome barriers to pork consumption. One group being targeted is healthcare professionals, who traditionally have advised patients not to eat pork. Sharlet Brown, Meat Board director of research/meat science information and pork information, said several efforts are under way to change dietitian and physician attitudes toward pork and get them to recommend the product to patients.

"This group can be a powerful sales force for the pork industry," Brown said. "By improving quality, we'll be able to send more positive messages to healthcare professionals about the benefits of pork and thereby give consumers permission to eat pork."

Somerset Holds Lamb Banquet

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

NEW CENTERVILLE (Somerset Co.) — "Eat lamb and wear wool" is a dictim held by the Somerset County Lamb Jackpot and Carcass committee.

They didn't mind eating those words as well as the lamb entree served recently by the ladies auxiliary of the New Centerville Volunteer Fire Department at the carcass class banquet.

Lauded were the 4-H'ers whose animals were found best at the "on the rail" evaluation held at LaRue Meat Market, Somerset, by judge Bill Kelly, Westmoreland County extension agent. Gifts and cash premiums were awarded to five.

Luke Svonavec, 12, Rockwood, got the award for having the overall grand champion. The High Ridge 4-H'er received, besides a nice trophy, a unique stained glass window crafted by a 4-H leader.

Svonavec said it will be hung in the sheep barn during the Somerset County Fair. Later, he plans to display it in a prominent place at the family home, he said.

His parents are David and Betty Lou Svonavec.

Jake Vough, 11, was soaring when his was a double honor, having first the overall reserve grand champion and also the Somerset County born champion. "I was overjoyed," he said. "My lamb last year didn't place at all."

Vough, also a High Ridge 4-H Club member, received a sheepskin and coverlet.

Larry and Melissa Vough, Markleton, are his parents.

Corey Sechler of the Valley 4-H Club had the third place finisher, which was also county born, and received a coverlet. Parents of the 17-year old are Rick and Audrey Sechler, Meyersdale.

Fourth place went to Steven King, along with a sheep clock. He's aged 16, a High Ridge 4-H Club member and the son of Theona King, Rockwood.

Brian Smith, 13, the son of Charlie and Betsy Smith, Rockwood, had the fifth place winner and got a decorative ceramic lamb. Smith, too, is in the High Ridge Club.

Carcass evaluation, according to a spokesperson, "is an evaluation of the quality of the meat as opposed to on the hoof at the fair." Most critical are the measures of loin and fat, she said.

Twenty-five kids participated, weighing in their animals on Monday, Aug. 8, and listening to Scott Baer's educational presentation about "condition" or "finish" on a lamb.

Seniors giving essays at the banquet were Teggan Hayes, Jenna Svonavec, Charlie Smith and Heidi Svonavec. Junior essayists were Brian Smith, Luke Svonavec and Gabriel Svonavec.

Baer showed a video and enlightened the group of guests with a carcass explanation.
